Kremlin Takes Gloves Off

Nikita Hare-Brained Schemer, Braggart, Soviet People Told

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, Nikita Khrushchev's former mouthpiece, threw the book at him today.

The organ of the Communist party accused its ousted chief of "hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions, individualistic bragging and phrasemongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

The front-page editorial nowhere mentioned Khrushchev

by name but there was no doubt about who was meant.

It said the Communist party opposed all these things and demanded "collective leadership" — exactly what Khrushchev insisted upon when he ruled Russia first in partnership with Georgi Malenkov and later with Nikolai Bulganin.

Both those men fell victim to Khrushchev's relentless drive for power.

The editorial, first expression of party opinion since Khrushchev's downfall, said it was "irreconcilably and consistently opposing and continues to oppose the ideology and practice of the personality cult."

This was equivalent to accusing Khrushchev of dictatorship. Informed sources said Friday Khrushchev was ousted for nepotism (giving jobs to relatives) and bad tactics in the bitter dispute with Red China.

Pravda, again without mentioning Khrushchev by name, said the Soviet Union could not "tolerate arm chair methods, personal decisions and disregard for the practical experience of the masses."

The reference to the masses was a clear indication that the party's grass-roots soundings showed discontent with such things as the agricultural failures that forced Khrushchev to buy wheat from Canada and the United States.

Lower Austria High on W.A.C.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett received an award from the parliament of Lower Austria during his recent visit there.

A scroll in his office says he has been presented with the "Golden Commander's Cross of Merit for the Province of Lower Austria with star."

Narrow Margin

Wilson Ends Tories' Rule

LONDON (CP) — Harold Wilson, the 48-year-old Yorkshireman with the computer-like brain, became Britain's 44th prime minister Friday after leading his Labor party to a knife-edge election victory.

Power shifted from Conservative to socialist hands after one of the most dramatic general election finishes that Britain has seen, putting an uneasy finish to 13 years of Tory rule.

Gordon Walker: Foreign Affairs

Callaghan: Defence

The Queen called Wilson, the youngest British premier this century, to Buckingham Palace and asked him to form a government after the accepted resignation of Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, who was prime minister for one year less a day.

STARTS NEW JOB
The ceremony of "kissing hands" with the Queen completed, Wilson tore into his new job with characteristic energy, preparing for his first television appearance as premier.

Only one remote constituency — Argyle, held by the Conservatives in the last House — remained to be reported following Thursday's general election for the 630-seat House. Labor had 317 seats compared with 303 for the Tories and nine for the Liberals.

ELECTION LIKELY
The outlook was for Labor to have an over-all margin in the next House of Commons of only four seats and some politicians predicted another election in a year or so. Few expected the new government would go a full five-year term without another election.

Wilson quickly began filling places in his cabinet. For the key post of foreign minister, he named Patrick Gordon Walker, a party stalwart who failed to win election to the Commons. Walker, 57, a former history tutor at Oxford, is expected to run again in a byelection in a safe Labor district from which an obliging incumbent, newly-elected, would be asked to resign.

BROWN APPOINTED
As expected, Wilson named Deputy Party Leader George Brown, 50, once Wilson's rival for power, as first secretary of state and minister for economic affairs. It is the second-ranking cabinet post and he will be asked to resign.

Sir Alec Not Quitting

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home Friday night described as hard-fought but fair the election campaign which deposed him.

"I intend to remain the leader of the Conservative party and I intend to lead the Opposition," he said firmly.

"I'm not afraid of opposition ... one must take the rough with the smooth in public life."

After Two Years

Treason Charged In Spiegel Case

KARLSRUHE (Reuters) — The West German federal prosecutor has charged the publisher of the weekly news magazine Der Spiegel, Rudolf Augstein, deputy editor-in-chief Conrad Ahlers, and an army officer with treason, it was announced here Friday.

MAJOR CRISIS
The charges came two years after "the Spiegel affair" blew up into a major crisis in former chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet and led to the dismissal of defence minister Franz Josef Strauss.

Security agents swooped on the Hamburg headquarters of Der Spiegel and its bureau in Bonn Oct. 26, 1962 — nearly three weeks after the magazine had published a critical article on West Germany's defence preparedness.

The officer charged with Augstein and Ahlers was named as Col. Alfred Martin, of the general staff, who now is under suspension. He is one of two army colonels suspected of having supplied information to the magazine.

INADEQUATE

Bus Crews Protest Attacks

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (UPI) — Liverpool bus crews halted services three hours early last night to protest recent night-time assaults against conductors.

The bus drivers and conductors said they will refuse to work after 10 p.m. on weekend nights because several conductors have been beaten up in recent weeks by passengers.

Calls for Abolition Talks

China Blasts Its Way Into Nuclear Club

From Reuters-AP
PEKING (CP) — China blasted its way into the world's nuclear club Friday and immediately called for a summit conference on the abolition of nuclear weapons.

The official announcement was distributed to jubilant Chinese who ran excitedly through the streets of Peking. (See also Page 3, 15.)

The announcement eight hours after the blast — which came at 3 p.m. (midnight EDT) — gave no details of the bomb, but pledged China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons against other nations.

It called for an all-nation summit conference to discuss "complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

FIFTH MEMBER
With the blast, China became the fifth member of the nuclear club behind the United States, Russia, Britain and France. Both France and China refused to sign the test-ban treaty in Moscow in August, 1963 which was later approved by some 100 nations.

The announcement of the explosion came within 24 hours of the Moscow announcement of Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's replacement as head of the Soviet Communist party and government.

Observers said Friday's blast was a timely reminder to Khrushchev's successors that China was determined to develop its own strength in all fields.

INCREASING INFLUENCE
They said Chinese leaders also hoped to use the successful explosion to increase their political influence in Asia and Africa.

The government announcement called it a "major achievement" in China's struggle to increase its defence capability and oppose U.S. "imperialist policy of nuclear blackmail and nuclear threats."

It said China had been forced to conduct nuclear tests and develop nuclear weapons.

"U.S. submarines carrying Polaris missiles with nuclear warheads are prowling the Taiwan Straits, the Tonkin Gulf, the Mediterranean, the Pacific, the Indian Ocean and the Atlantic Ocean, threatening everywhere peace-loving countries."

BOMB 'PAPER TIGER'
The atom bomb is a paper tiger. This famous saying by (Communist) party chairman Mao Tse-tung is known to all. This was our view in the past and is our view at the present."

The statement continued: "In developing nuclear weapons, China's aim is to break the nuclear monopoly of the nuclear powers and to eliminate nuclear weapons."

"The development by China of nuclear weapons is for defence and for protecting the Chinese people from the danger

Did Bomb Open UN Door?

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday the question of Communist China's possible entry into the United Nations cannot long be postponed.

He added in reply to reporters' questions that the detonation of a nuclear device by Red China emphasizes the importance of Chinese participation in disarmament discussions.

Victoria Case

TRAILER YIELDS BODY

By BOB PETHICK

A Victoria man reclaiming a missing trailer in Burnaby Friday turned up the body of an unidentified woman.

The discovery was made by Gerry Coad, co-owner of the Talmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas Street. The firm rented the trailer in Saanich last month.

Mr. Coad's detachment of the RCMP located the trailer in Central Park Motel, 3943 Kingsway, and immediately notified the Victoria owner.

PAIR OF FEET
Mr. Coad left Victoria to reclaim the trailer. When he arrived, there were no keys. Checking through the trailer window, he was startled to see what he believed to be a pair of feet.

His partner, Wayne Carter, said that Mr. Coad then went to another window to get a better view.

This time, he could see a woman's body.

CHECKED IN
Police said they were seeking Reginald Howard of Regina in connection with the case.

City police last night confirmed this story: A couple checked into Red's Auto Court, 285 Gorge, on Sept. 14. The proprietor said he saw a man carrying a woman into the suite.

CARRIED OUT
Next day, the man went out and returned with a trailer. He carried the woman out, and the trailer left.

When the proprietor went into the suite to tidy up, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

A Burnaby motel spokesman told police that two people registered as man and wife, arriving in the trailer Sept. 16. The man paid in advance for several days.

NOT SUSPICIOUS
The proprietor said that he was not suspicious when no one was seen entering or leaving the trailer. People often park trailers and go for boat rides up the coast, he said.

When the trailer continued to sit there—for more than three weeks—the proprietor was concerned and phoned police. RCMP found the trailer belonged to a Saanich company and notified them.

THEFT CHARGE
A warrant earlier had been issued for Howard by Saanich police on a charge of theft of the trailer.

City police are seeking Howard in connection with other charges.

Touring Lesage Bypassing England

No Quebec Apology to Queen

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — The aftermath of Queen Elizabeth's just-completed visit here continued to make news Friday on three fronts—from Premier Lesage, from acting attorney-general Claude Wagner and from Ottawa.

First, Lesage said he does not contemplate visiting England when he leaves Tuesday for a three-week holiday in Europe. Thus a suggested apology to the Queen for her cool Quebec City welcome isn't coming.

At the same time Lesage had "no excuses to give to anyone" for the rigid security measures which culminated in violent clashes.

Wagner, meanwhile, postponed a scheduled press conference arising out of the clashes.

And in Ottawa, in an unprecedented move, the Commons approved unanimously a message of "deepest loyalty, affection and respect" for Queen Elizabeth. Then the members—but one—stood up and sang together, "God Save the Queen."

Creditiste Lucien Plourde, who remained seated, said, "It's a free country and I feel like it." He added he would have stood for "O Canada."

Lesage said he did not think he would be going to England and he would be making one speech, in Athens, when he receives an honorary degree.

Lesage said he had never given orders to anyone about the application of the drastic security measures.

He said, however, that on two occasions when he had to precede the Queen's motorcade by several minutes, he indicated to police where he thought there might be trouble spots along the route.

"It was my duty to do what I did and I have no excuses to give anyone," he said.

U.S., Soviet Chiefs 'To Work for Peace'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson and the new Soviet leadership exchanged pledges Friday to continue to work for "a more solid peace."

The chief executive also told the nation that Communist China's explosion of a nuclear device was an event of "limited significance" that would not diminish U.S. commitments to the free nations of Asia.

The ouster of Soviet Premier Khrushchev and China's nuclear breakthrough were the subjects of a White House meeting between Johnson and his highest aides.

He also conferred for 45 minutes with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, at the envoy's request.

Afterwards, Johnson went on television to report that Dobrynin had delivered a message from Russia's new rulers expressing "the desire of the Soviet government to continue in seeking for steps toward a more solid peace."

He met in the morning with Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, undersecretary of state George Ball, former ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn Thompson, director John McCone of Central Intelligence Agency and McGeorge Bundy, his national security adviser.

He scheduled another meeting of the national security council today.

Dobrynin said after his meeting with Johnson that Russia's foreign policy under Premier Alexei Kosygin and Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev would not change.

"The fundamental foundation of the Soviet Union's foreign policy is the strengthening of peace," he said.

White House sources said Dobrynin told Johnson that "in the future, Soviet policy would remain steadfastly on this course of peaceful co-existence and relaxation of tensions."

"The quest for peace was never more determined than it is now," Johnson was quoted as saying. "This government would not be provocative, but on the other hand is determined to defend our interest."

Johnson was understood to have made special pleas for disarmament and strengthening the United Nations, which faces a crisis over Russia's refusal to pay outstanding debts.

The sources said the two did not discuss Red China, but that the president did mention China's atomic blast to Dobrynin.

China in Atomic Club of the United States launching a nuclear war," it said.

ENDS SPECULATION

The blast ended speculation started Sept. 23 by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk that China might explode its first nuclear bomb in "the near future."

The United States confirmed that Red China had exploded a "low-yield" nuclear test. President Johnson cautioned "its military significance should not be overestimated." He said many years will be required before the Chinese obtain a stockpile of nuclear weapons and a delivery capability.

Peking's announcement gave no indication whether the test blast was underground, at the surface or in the atmosphere.

U.S. nuclear scientists said the blast likely was about the force of the first U.S. atomic explosion in July 1945. That explosion was rated at 19 kilotons, or a force equal to 19,000 tons of TNT.

Wilson Inherits Grave Problems In U.K. Economy

LONDON (CP)—Grave economic problems face Prime Minister Harold Wilson as he begins his major job of trying to build a new Britain by bringing segments of British industry under closer government control.

With Britain's trade gap widening and the prospect of the world becoming uneasy about investing in a country under socialist rule, the 48-year-old leader may have to take some dramatic steps to narrow the gap and offset the possible decline in the rate of foreign investment in Britain.

The Conservative Evening Standard, in a front-page story, says a higher central bank interest rate, increased borrowings from the International Monetary Fund and perhaps even import controls may have to be given serious consideration as Britain faced another month of disappointing trade.

IMPORT CONTROLS

Richard Crossman, who likely will be education minister in the Wilson cabinet, said in a television interview among the things the socialists must study is the possibility of import controls which, he said, had been prepared under the Tory administration.

Wilson himself, in his first broadcast after taking office, said he is conferring with his colleagues to undertake an urgent review of difficulties in the economic sphere. He did not go into detail.

GAP WIDENS

Just before Wilson took office, the Board of Trade estimated Britain's trade gap—the excess of imports over exports—had widened again.

The seasonally adjusted monthly rate had increased to $49,000,000 ($17,000,000) in the third quarter of 1964 from $44,000,000 ($13,000,000) in the second quarter.

TRADE DEFICIT

It would appear on this basis Britain's commodity trade deficit for the first nine months of the year was running at the equivalent of $1,200,000,000 compared with about $600,000,000 in the similar period of 1963.

The previous administration had already disclosed that it had arranged short-term currency swaps and borrowings with a number of central banks to help protect the British pound during the election campaign.

This gave rise to the Wilson charge the Tories had been borrowing at the rate of £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) a day to create an artificial aura of prosperity and strength during the campaign.

Little Change Expected

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (UPI)—Official Ottawa saw little change in Canadian-British relations following Labor leader Harold Wilson's election as prime minister.

Neither Prime Minister Pearson nor Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would comment officially, but spokesmen for both felt relations would remain unchanged.

FRIENDLY

"We have every reason to believe the same friendly co-operation will continue," a Pearson spokesman said.

There was the feeling here that Wilson's slim majority in the British Parliament would prevent him from making any major changes in either domestic or foreign policy.

New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas was obviously pleased by the results. "I think a Labor government in Britain indicates that the British people recognize the need for some fundamental economic changes," Mr. Douglas said.

He said Labor's announced policy of expanding Commonwealth trade "is important from Canada's standpoint."

WOULD HURT

Mr. Douglas said the Conservatives' plan to expand into the European Common Market would have hurt Canada's export position. He said Labor's win in good times was even more impressive. "Some 46 per cent had the good sense to look ahead and see what faced them in the future."

Social Credit leader Robert Thompson was less pleased. "It is unfortunate for British and the world that neither party (Conservative or Labor) received a clear majority," he said.

"If the world ever needed political stability, it is now."

Psychological Impact of Chinese Bomb

By STEWART HENSLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Red China's explosion of its first nuclear device, crude as it was, is expected to have tremendous psychological impact in Asia and other underdeveloped areas.

It could also turn out to be a big factor in the ultimate outcome of the struggle between Peking and the Soviet Union for control of world communism.

The eventual effect on the United States and its allies of this lonely blast in western China is hard to foresee. It may be disastrous. On the other hand, it could be turned into a plus for the anti-Communist world if skillfully exploited by western diplomats.

The fact that it will be a long time before Communist China has a real nuclear arsenal is beside the point.

In the eyes of many Asians, it is likely the Communist giant has now acquired the capability of spreading a cloud of nuclear blackmail over her neighbors and will exploit it to the fullest.

The threat of even a single crude atomic bomb pushed out of the door of a transport plane over some defenceless or "neutral" Asian country could give Peking a powerful policy lever. The immediate effects of China's success may well be detrimental to the U.S. position. I could have a particularly bad morale effect in Southeast Asia, where the United States already complains that people of some Communist-menaced nations are not wholeheartedly supporting efforts to stem the Red tide.

President Johnson sought to lessen the psychological impact of China's initial blast, which the United States had accurately forecast, in his statement to the nation. He pointed out that it would take China "many years and great efforts" to develop a bomb stockpile and reliable delivery system. He pledged the United States to respond to "requests from Asian nations for help in dealing with Chinese Communist aggression" if Peking eventually developed an effective atomic arsenal.

China's first step into the exclusive circle of nuclear powers, limited and primitive though it may be, is also expected to be utilized to the fullest by Peking agents who have been busy for years seeking to persuade the backward countries of Africa and Latin America that their future lies with Peking and not Moscow.

Won't Use Bomb China Pledges

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist Chinese dictator Mao Tse-tung, now the possessor of a crude but potentially destructive atomic bomb, has been known in the past as the only world leader who believes he has nothing to fear from nuclear war.

However, in announcing its first nuclear atomic explosion, Peking said, "The Chinese government hereby solemnly pledges that China will never at any time and under any circumstances be the first to use nuclear weapons."

The official statement which followed the announcement of Red China's atomic test said:
"The atom bomb is a paper tiger . . . This was our view in the past and this is still our view at present."

Message to Moscow

Chinese Call for Unity —But on Chinese Terms

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China's leaders called today for the re-establishment of unity between Red China and the Soviet Union. But they made it clear it would have to be on Peking's terms.

The official New China news agency, in a broadcast monitored here, said four top Peking leaders, including party chairman Mao Tse-tung, had sent "warm greetings" to the new Kremlin rulers—Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin.

"Let the Chinese and Soviet parties and the two countries unite on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism!" the Chinese Communist message said.

Peking interprets Marxism-Leninism as being in opposition to the ousted Nikita Khrushchev's line of peaceful co-existence, which his heirs have vowed to follow. This was taken to mean Red China would settle for unity with Moscow only on its own terms.

The message from the Peking leaders made no mention of Khrushchev, who was replaced Thursday as leader of the Soviet Union. Khrushchev had long been called a traitor to Communism by the Red Chinese. It was not believed, however, that the message marked a

Russia's Choice

THOUGH it is yet too soon to attempt to calculate with any certainty what changes may be brought about in the Soviet Union's relationship with the West following the departure of Nikita Khrushchev from the Kremlin, the democracies may take some heart from the fact that the new regime has publicly dedicated itself to the policies of the former leader.

In announcing this decision Friday morning, the Soviet newspaper Pravda, which is the official organ of the Communist Party and the most authoritative journal in Russia, said this: "The Communist Party of the Soviet Union firmly and consistently is carrying into life the Leninist general line worked out at the 20th and 22nd congresses of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

These policies, which were first introduced by the former premier eight years ago, resulted in considerably reducing the tensions which had been building up between the East and the West since the end of the Second World War.

Adopted by the 20th congress in 1956 and the 22nd congress in 1962 they concerned themselves in the main with the de-Stalinization of Russia, the putting into practice of the theory of co-existence and the acceptance of the belief that war between Communist and capitalist nations was not necessarily inevitable.

Understandably these policies, though welcomed by the West, caused much concern among many of the other Communist nations who had long accepted the Stalin philosophy that world Communism could in the end only be achieved by militant means.

This deviation from the Stalin line of thought on the part of the Soviet eventually resulted in a separation within the Communist bloc of nations with China, Albania and a few minor Communist satellites electing to cling to the old aggressive attitudes in defiance of the Khrushchev aims.

If Russia's new leaders are indeed determined to follow the present policy, the Western world need fear the Soviet Union no more or no less than they did when Nikita Khrushchev was its premier.

However, the democracies cannot be blamed if they regard the Kremlin changes with some suspicion if not outright trepidation. There is already considerable evidence that the former premier was "purged" rather than retired over his diplomatic and ideological break with Red China.

If the present Soviet leaders now attempt to heal this breach and reach some kind of rapprochement with Peking it is almost positive that they can succeed only if they are prepared to see the U.S.S.R. revert to some extent to Stalinism.

That China is now a nuclear nation in her own right might well be the final factor in deciding which course Russia will take for the future.

Also on China's side is the fact that she has made great inroads for the cause of Communism among many of the new nations in Africa and Asia—particularly in areas where the Soviet Union had earlier failed to make an impression.

If she has not already done so, Russia must now choose between Khrushchevism and Stalinism. And on that choice may hinge the fate of the world.

Britain's Choice

ON THE HEELS of election defeat it may be an ironic reflection of Sir Alec Douglas-Home and his Conservative Party that had news of the Chinese atomic explosion, or of the Soviet ouster of Premier Khrushchev, come two days earlier they might have been returned to power. As forecast, the election was so close these events could easily have swayed the British voters because of the imponderables involved.

Rejection of a British nuclear deterrent of its own as a cardinal factor of the Labor platform might have swung the balance in Conservative favor.

Excepting only the Labor intention to renationalize steel this was the chief issue in a campaign waged more with generalized claims on the part of each party to end unemployment and stimulate the national economy, than anything else. The pattern of social measures in Britain has been set beyond drastic alteration and its international alignments dictated by the realities of the existing world situation.

In the latter two categories there can be small difference in the outlook of either a Conservative or a Labor administration, apart from the nuclear question, other than the methods to be adopted to cure Britain's economic ills and promote the public welfare.

The British electorate has decided to place its immediate future in the care of a new prime minister, Mr. Harold Wilson, and perhaps not surprisingly. It is the bent of electorates to feel the need of a change and the Conservatives have been in power for 13 straight years. That in itself was a disadvantage Sir Alec Douglas-Home, whose own reign at the helm has been for him disconcertingly brief, had to overcome.

It is patent, however, that in Britain the voters are almost equally divided between these two major parties and in the result the margin of the Labor victory is so slender as to create the kind of stalemate that currently affects the Canadian parliament. In a Commons with 630 members, seldom if ever in the House at any one time because of illness and other causes, Mr. Wilson's position will be vulnerable to sudden adverse confidence votes and the division bells will ring with frequent and potential Commons defeat in prospect. It seems apparent that no controversial policies can be introduced with hope of prompt passage, and the new Labor administration will have to proceed with caution. It can scarcely claim a public mandate in fact for any specific policy.

Already there is the suggestion that another election may be forthcoming within a year in order to set the Westminster House properly in order for effective governance.

The Conservative view of the election is that the Liberals robbed them of a return to power. Although winning only a few seats the latter's electorate vote doubled itself and primarily at the expense of the Conservatives. Labor retained its previous ratio of the popular vote. Holding the balance was the chief aim of the Liberals and even with a mere handful of MPs they may have succeeded.

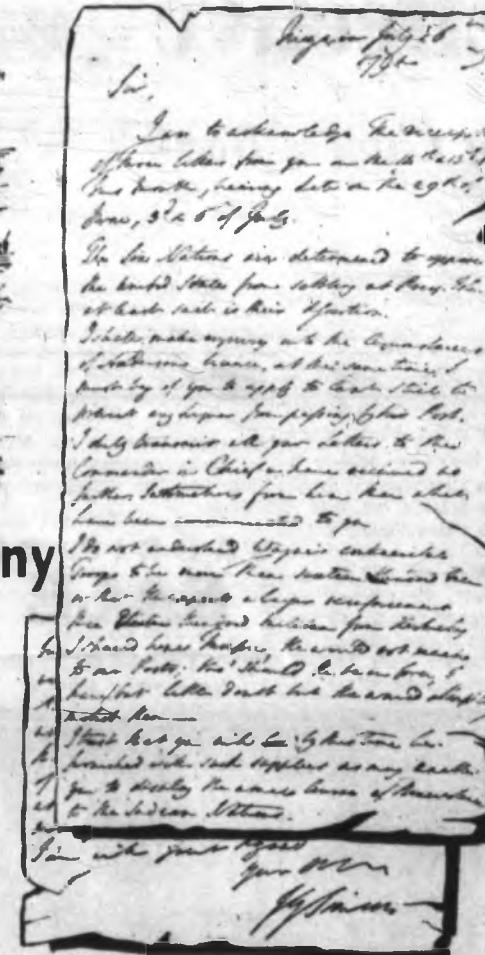

Probably Mr. Wilson proved to be the more forceful campaigner of the two in an election where there was for the British unusual emphasis put on the personality cult, and Sir Alec Douglas-Home failed to stamp his image on the country with the required semblance of authority. Yet in a sense the Conservatives maintained their status by coming so close to victory; in public estimation they could not have done too badly during their lengthy terms of office.

FAMOUS LETTERS IN CANADIAN HISTORY NO. 30

Simcoe Eyes Mad Anthony

Mad Anthony Wayne was on the march. And from his fortress at Niagara, Governor John Graves Simcoe kept close watch on the movement of this seasoned United States general and his troops toward the Indian frontier in Ohio. Governor Simcoe had served with the British in the Revolutionary War and had reason to worry about the movement of the Americans. They had been repulsed from attempts to invade Canada shortly before Simcoe was named first Lieutenant Governor of the newly-created province of Upper Canada. He called the first legislative assembly into session at Kingston; planned to build his capital at Niagara but was induced to select a site between the two and built Fort York which became the foundation of Toronto. He served close to five years and did much to encourage the settlement of the new province.

TEXT OF SIMCOE'S LETTER

Niagara, July 16th, 1794.

Sir:

I am to acknowledge the receipt of seven letters from you bearing the dates of the 29th of June and the 3rd and 5th of July.

The Six Nations are determined to oppose the United States from settling at Presque, at least such is their assertion.

I shall make inquiry into the circumstances of Aldersons licence and at the same time I must beg you to apply to Capt. Still to prevent any liquor from passing by his port.

I duly transmit all your letters to the commander in chief and have received no further instructions from him than what has been communicated to you.

I do not understand Wayne's continental troops to be more than sixteen hundred men or that he expects a larger reinforcement than eighteen hundred militia from Kentucky.

I should hope therefore he would not reach our ports tho' should he be in force I have but little doubt but he would attempt to molest them.

I trust that you will by this time be furnished with such supplies as may enable you to display the usual course of benevolence to the Indian nations...

I am with great regards,

J. G. SIMCOE.

Mixed Force an Error

IT is now nearly 20 years since the Second World War ended; yet the problem of what is to happen to Germany remains to day the most serious and difficult one facing both the Western Allies and the Soviet Union.

This problem would be difficult enough even if Berlin were within the borders of West Germany; 100 miles inside East Germany, and with a wall dividing the city, a solution seems almost unattainable.

However there are signs that a settlement may eventually be possible. One of these is the fact that ex-premier Khrushchev proposed to visit Bonn, the capital of West Germany. A year ago no one would have dreamed that such a visit could take place. This move may yet lead to some kind of agreement between the Russians and the West Germans.

Another straw in the wind is the slight relaxation of travel restrictions between West and East Germany. The wall remains but now there can be more travel through it and if this improvement causes no trouble a further easing is probable.

A third sign is an increase in the trade between West and East Germany. Regardless of differences of policy between the two governments this trade has been increasing steadily with benefit to both sides. Provided there is no violent quarrel between the Western Allies and Russia this trade is certain to expand.

Of course the question always in the background is the possibility of reunifying West and East Germany. There can be no doubt that this is and always will be the main aim of West Germany and of a vast majority of the people across the wall. Had the East not been under the complete domination of the Soviet Union this reunion would have taken place long since.

No government of West Germany could survive which did not advocate reunification. This is made doubly certain by the presence of millions of refugees from East Germany who now form a substantial portion of the West German electorate. As one would expect the Russians have a deadly fear of a reunited Germany. They took terrible punishment at the hands of the Germans in the last war and have no intention of permitting this to happen again. On the question of reunification they have been unyielding.

By HOWARD GREEN

Meanwhile moderate men have been able to keep control in West Germany. Under them the country has made great progress and has shown no evidence of aggressive intent. If such men continue at the helm a solution of the German problem may be possible in time. On the other hand if fanatics are ever permitted to take over there will be no chance of a settlement without war.

But I do think the West German government is making a mistake by pressing for a NATO mixed-manned nuclear force. This has been under consideration for many months and now as a beginning an American destroyer has been taken over by a mixed crew; while most of the personnel are American there are also sailors from West Germany, Britain, Italy and Greece.

By the end of 1964 the numbers from these countries are to be increased and Hollanders and Turks are to be added. This destroyer is armed with conventional weapons but the plan is to build about 25 freighter-type ships for the mixed force and arm them with Polaris nuclear weapons.

Eight of the fifteen NATO nations are not participating—Canada, France, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Iceland and Luxembourg. Britain has joined but with obvious reluctance and under heavy pressure from the United States.

I believe the Canadian government is right in refusing to take part. I only hope Mr. Pearson will not change his mind and do a sudden flip overnight as he did on the question of nuclear warheads on Canadian soil.

The main purpose is to give West Germany a share in the control of vital nuclear weapons although by treaty she undertook never to acquire or use them.

The argument is that if she is not granted this concession she will develop her own nuclear force as France is doing.

The mixed force will not add anything to the defence of the West for the same ships by Americans and obviously would be more efficient. On the other hand the proposal is endangering agreements already reached with the Soviet Union and who remain in the services and this makes it easier for him to return whatever offers of civilian employment may come to him. Then, one morning, he has a letter saying he has three months or a little more in which to get out and find something else to do.

The military mind surely can find some way of letting individual officers know, as soon as it is established that their prospects of future employment are poor. These men should be on the lookout for civilian work, and begin thinking about where they want to stay, whether the house should be sold and where the children would do best in school. The letter of compulsory retirement would not then be so unkind.

This firing by platoons, advancing by the right in three stages, is tidy, drill-square stuff but it would be more impressive if adequate thought for the interests of disappointed, displaced men were in evidence.

Platoon Firing

From The Ottawa Journal

IN the process of reducing Canadian Forces Headquarters by one-third, 122 officers of ranks from brigadier to major or the equivalent will be casualties.

But the victims have not been named. The first letters to officers prematurely retired will go out about November 1. There will then be a pause until about February 1, 1965, when the next batch will be given their walking orders. The third group must quit the service through letters sent to them about May 1 next year.

Is this the best the forces can do for officers whose "loyalty, efficiency and faithful service" is praised by Defence Minister Hellyer?

This arrangement ensures that an officer can spend up to six months in suspense, uncertain whether he will be kept on duty. He reads Mr. Hellyer's assurance that good careers will continue to be available to those is holding up further progress in the 18-nation Disarmament Committee.

Actually only the United States and West Germany have shown real enthusiasm for the program. The situation was not improved by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany when he made a suggestion earlier this month that his country and the United States should alone create a fleet of nuclear-armed surface ships.

If they do it will be a step down a very slippery slope. One which could have disastrous consequences.

MAY I add my congratulations to John Gough and the anonymous mother, for their outstanding contribution to the increase in sales of The Catcher in the Rye. J. D. Salinger really needs no such boost—he is one of the most outstanding of contemporary writers; but he might not, without the aid of Mr. Gough and anonymous mother, be as widely read as he deserves, by young Victorians.

I think Mr. Gough and anonymous mother should now turn their attention to other outstanding books on the suggested reading list for Grade 12, which also contain within their pages some unpleasant facts of life. I list a few for their convenience: Theodore Dreiser: An American Tragedy. John Steinbeck: Grapes of Wrath. Thomas Hardy: Trees of D'Urbervilles. Upton Sinclair: The Jungle. Lillian Hellman: The Little Foxes. Basil: The Barretts of Wimpole Street.

When these have been disposed of, perhaps the grade 12 reading list could be narrowed down to the following, which, believe it or not, are also on the list:

The Babe Ruth Story. Black Beauty. Bean Castle. Little Women. The Jungle Books. The Secret Garden. Read fast, Mr. Gough, read fast anonymous mother, but our young people read even faster and succeed in developing a taste for living literature, and a glimpse of the real world, which we have helped make for them.

Capital Shocked

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

ALL those fantastically elaborate security precautions terrorism made so urgently necessary for the Queen may have been so much separatist fun and games for the kook element in Quebec—but it has left the national capital and probably the rest of the country in a cold fury.

Actually, the feeling has been a strangely uncomfortable mixture of glacial anger and a kind of crawling embarrassment.

That the Queen—or for that matter, any distinguished or royal visitor—should, for safety's sake, have been subjected to those idiot-inspired inconveniences and even, perhaps, indignities, was completely foreign to this country.

Especially has it been regarded in this capital as an outrage. For here, things as long as anybody can remember them, have been on the slow and easy, even casual, but always decently and warmly friendly side.

Nobody was ever given a deadly serious bodyguard. Not even the three American presidents—Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy—who came to call.

They brought their own security forces, and all the RCMP did was to provide a little ceremonial color. No real trigger-ready security ever before was provided—not even for the Queen—since, until now, it never occurred to anybody, in either public or private life, that injury or death might strike down our visiting VIPs.

That the new and sinister element of extremism has intruded so barbarously has shocked this previously pleasantly placid capital like a jolt of electricity. The city remembered how, nearly 30 years ago, Elizabeth's parents, the late George VI and the Queen Mother, felt so comfortably at home in the Canadian capital that they could go for an afternoon stroll, all unescorted, in the nearby Gatineau Hills.

Nobody, for a fleeting moment, worried that any harm could come to them.

But things have changed. And so drastically that the Queen, now, must speed down guarded streets in the capital in a bullet-proof car.

This change has seemed to have come almost overnight. It was only five years ago that the Queen was here in Ottawa. And then, in 1959, truth to tell, the authorities, as they had been two years previously in '57, were a bit concerned about the crowds and the question of her safety.

But it was a happy concern. The only worry then was whether she would be smothered to death by the thousands of people who wished her only well, as either the Queen of Canada, the Commonwealth and Britain, or as simply a lovely and gracious woman.

She met just about everybody. Both times. Not just the high and the mighty. But the Grass as well as the Brass. She even had a party for the press at old Rideau Hall. And it was that. A party, really, and not a formal royal reception.

But since then the Terror has come to Quebec—and Quebec is just across the Ottawa River. So things have changed, even Ottawa, the little off-the-beaten-track world capital that so seldom, before, even changed.

This was a city where everybody—presidents, prime ministers and plain people—were so off-hand about each other as to seem to be almost next-door-neighbors.

If there was a complaint over the capital's conduct on state occasions, it was that the city just couldn't seem to be bothered.

Except to cheer the Queen, Ottawa seldom seemed able to exert the effort required to welcome VIPs.

The worry always has been not that they could be hurt or insulted, but that they would be ignored.

Harry Truman felt at home enough to plop down under the shade of a white birch and sip a sociable glass or two of bourbon and branch water with reporters on the lawns of a country club.

General Eisenhower was relaxed enough in this relaxed capital to shoot golf of a sunny afternoon with half the city in his gallery.

Looking back on it, the only VIP who ever suffered injury in this kindly capital was President Kennedy who hurt his back planting a ceremonial maple tree out at Rideau Hall.

But this time they were guarding the Queen as if this were a city of assassins, in a nation of nuts.

British General John Burgoyne surrendered to the Americans at Saratoga 187 years ago today—in 1777—during the American Revolution. Burgoyne, who commanded the British reinforcements invading the American colonies from Canada, was denounced by the British government for losing the battle. Eventually, general opinion softened and other factors that contributed to his defeat were considered, including the cutting of his communication lines with Canada and the superior forces he had to contend with.

I am still vitally interested in Greater Victoria's municipal affairs, particularly as I still own my home in Oak Bay.

Recently, while on one of my visits to Victoria, I attended a meeting in the Oak Bay municipal hall, attended by a large number of ratepayers. This was a public hearing on an application by three men to rezone for an apartment a lovely piece of property on Beach Drive.

I was shocked at the manner in which the meeting was conducted. The rezoning, in my opinion, to have little regard for, or interest in, the wishes of the people gathered there. His main concern appeared to me to be that no one be repetitious in voicing opinions.

It is a sobering thought that the opinion of five members of the council can be instrumental in changing for posterity this beautiful section of waterfront. I am thankful that their tenure in office cannot be as long-lasting as the results of their decision.

Why did council not make a more conscientious effort to find out what the people wanted done? Why did they not encourage people to speak up at the meeting? Why would it matter if the meeting went on for an hour or go longer than it did? Surely a few hours would be well spent in finding out what people thought in regard to such a long-lasting decision.

I voted for Mr. Cox in the last municipal election. I shall not be repetitious.

Well Chosen

I would like to add my protest to those already made about the action of the superintendent of schools in withdrawing The Catcher in the Rye. I remember thinking, after reading it several years ago, that it was a book that would be likely to make contact with boys of high school age, and might very well make literature come alive for them.

If this process started reading would not remain a thing, always remote from life, as it does for so many. They might progress to the realization that most worthwhile books deal with the problems and emotions that are common to us all.

For that reason I think the book was very well chosen, and it seems to me nonsense to say that it is more suited to the college level than the high school. At what point do young people start to think for themselves, and use their own judgment, if they haven't been encouraged to do so all their lives?

In my opinion, The Catcher in the Rye, so far from being trash, is a thoughtful, well-written book and very well suited to the purpose for which it was chosen.

Portable Pensions A Step Nearer

TORONTO (CP)—Pension experts from the provincial and federal governments decided Friday night to form an inter-provincial committee to promote uniformity and portability of private pension plans across Canada.

Delegates to a conference on uniform pension legislation, called by the Ontario government, voted to have the committee's secretariat operate out of Toronto so it can use the staff of the Ontario Pension Commission, which has done pioneering work in the field.

The conference was scheduled for two days, but it ended Friday night after covering its agenda in what Laurence Coward, chairman of the conference, and of the Ontario Pension Commission, said was a promising sign for future agreement among the provinces.

NO CONFLICT SEEN

Mr. Coward said the inter-provincial committee—whose members have not been named yet—will be asked to present a model draft bill to all provinces for consideration by Jan. 1, 1966. The Quebec pension bill is scheduled to take effect that day.

A communiqué issued after Friday's meeting said that all delegates—most of them technical experts from the provincial governments—agreed there is a need for legislation governing private pension plans which provide benefits in addition to any national plan. There was no conflict between the conference's work and the proposed Canada pension plan.

Sea of Flames Follows Crash

ROTTERDAM (Reuters)—

A sea of flames spread across Waal harbor here Friday after a collision between the Swiss inland vessel Erica, loaded with high octane gasoline, and a Dutch vessel, Gebri II. Thousands of gallons of gasoline poured into the harbor from the tanks of the 1,200-ton Erica and caught fire. None was injured.

The delegates wanted arrangements to be made so that plans, if possible, be examined under only one jurisdiction and not in every province in which there are employee members, the communiqué said.

"I see no reason why this portable pension concept should not spread across the provinces," Mr. Coward said at the end of the meeting.

The meeting had been aimed at laying the groundwork for a scheme whereby a private pension plan registered in any one province would be approved in all of them.

New Catholic Church Slated for Lake Hill

A new Roman Catholic Church is to be built in the Lake Hill District. At a cost of $135,000 it will be the new centre of Rev. John Planeta's Sacred Heart Parish.

The old church is at 1130 Palmer Road; the new will be in the 800 block McKenzie Avenue.

The old was recently turned by Father Planeta and completion is expected by next April in time for Easter services.

"I will still be saying mass at the old church for some time after construction of the new is completed," said Father Planeta.

"There are 70 Polish families, many of whom are elderly couples, who would find it inconvenient to attend at the new location."

However, a move had to be made to accommodate an increasing number of worshippers. Father Planeta said that two of the four regular Sunday services were overcrowded.

The architect for the new church is John Di Castrì.

Heir-Apparent

A Canadian, Father Swain, is heir-apparent to Father Janssens, vicar-general of the Jesuit Order in Rome, who died recently.

Billy Graham May Come

Island Crusade Planned

A southern Vancouver Island crusade to complement the Billy Graham Vancouver crusade next year was decided upon Wednesday at a meeting of 25 Christian groups in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Kirk Hall.

Those in attendance heard Dr. Victor Nelson, crusade organizer in Canada, who probably will be preacher for a two-week mission in Victoria during September, 1965.

A committee of five ministers and laymen will try to build up sufficient interest and participation so that Billy Graham might include Victoria in his crusade.

The centre for the Island crusade is expected to be either the Memorial Arena or Esquimalt Civic Centre.

The Vancouver crusade, at which hundreds from the Island are expected, will be May 2-6, June 25-30 and July 1-4. Billy Graham will be at the Empire Stadium for the July meetings.

Gospel singer George Beverly Shea will appear in Victoria prior to the spring and summer meetings. He will give a concert January 9 in Central Junior High sponsored by the Christian Business Men's Association.

Injunction Halts Picketing at Mill

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the Supreme Court granted an injunction Friday against picketing at Frolex Mills, Limited.

The injunction against Kamloops local of the IWA restrains pickets from blocking or in any way obstructing access to or from mills owned by Frolex, which have been struck since Sept. 23.

Pulp Share Issue Due Next Week

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

to British Columbia investors is next week's issue of proferred convertible shares in the British-controlled Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Company.

On offer are 600,000 preferred redeemable convertible shares of $25 par (total value $15,000, 000). They will pay a dividend at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent and at their offering price of $26 will yield 4.33 per cent.

The main attraction of the issue is the fact that the shares are convertible into Anglo-Canadian common on the basis of two shares to one, after the present common have been split four-for-one.

At present trading around $32, the common stock when split will be worth about $13. This means that the new preferred offered at $26 will be selling right on the conversion price.

The two-for-one conversion is effective until 1967, and thereafter at higher rates until 1976.

The Albert E. Reed Company of England owns about 96 per cent of the 1,364,271 outstanding common shares of Anglo-Canadian, but the new issue will widen the public participation in the company.

The Reed paper group is currently building a pulp mill valued at $85,000,000 jointly with Canadian Forest Products at Prince George.

the U.S. subsidiary of Canadian Breweries.

Carling is reported to have acquired for an undisclosed sum all the assets of Arizona Brewing Company Inc. of Phoenix, Arizona, which last year sold more than 150,000 barrels of beer.

It will become Carling's ninth U.S. brewery.

PROFITS INCREASED

Net earnings of Abitibi Power and Paper for the nine months to Sept. 30 were up 16.4 per cent from the corresponding period of 1963. The company reports a net profit of $12,787,268
(72.1 cents) against $10,982,297
(62.9 cents).

Sales were up $15,383,524, or 12.8 per cent at $135,311,352.

The following shares have been added to the Toronto Stock Exchange Industrial average—Laurentide Finance, Oshawa Wholesale, "A", Beaver Lumber, Hudson's Bay Company, Woodward's Stores, "A", Bathurst Power and Paper and Canadian Petrofina. The index will now consist of 87 stocks.

Added to the gold index are Campbell Red Lake Mines and Upper Canada Mines, while Canadian Superior is now an oil index stock.

OIL LANDS FOR SALE

Ninety-eight parcels of land are being put on the block for the Crown sale of oil and gas rights and drilling reservations to be held by the B.C. government Nov. 19.

The parcels are widely scattered over the northeastern portion of the province, extending from south of the Peace River to near the Northwest Territories boundary.

Many of the parcels are in the vicinity of the oilfields in the Fort St. John gathering system.

METAL PRICES RISE

Consolidated Mining and Smelting has increased its United States prices for lead and zinc in line with advances made earlier this week by U.S. distributors.

The new U.S. prices are 15 cents a pound for lead and 14 1/2 cents a pound for zinc.

CARLING EXPANDS

Further expansion into the U.S. beer market is announced by Carling Brewing Company.

Arrow Dam

Tenders

Due Jan. 12

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has called tenders for construction of Arrow Dam, second project under the Co-kumla River treaty.

A hydro announcement
Friday said bids would be opened
Jan. 12 and a contract awarded after study by hydro engineers.
Under Columbia treaty terms with the United States, the High Arrow Dam must be completed by April 1, 1968.

The earth-fill and concrete dam, to be 170 feet high and 2,850 across, is the second of three to be built under the treaty.

Hydro has estimated total cost of the Arrow project will reach $150,000,000.

A contract for Duncan Dam, first of the three, has already been let to a consortium of Mannix Ltd. of Calgary, Stan-ard General Construction (International) Ltd., also of Calgary, and Emil Anderson of Vancouver.

The group's low bid was $15, 889,857 and the dam must also be completed by April 1, 1968.

New Garage

To Cost $500,000

A $500,000, six-acre new centre for Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Limited will be in operation next spring opposite the Mayfair Shopping Centre at 3050 Douglas.

President Newell Morrison said work will start immediately, the contract having been awarded this week to Farmer Construction.

Basic construction material will be pre-stressed concrete, with finishing to be a near-white.

The body trim and paint divisions will be in an upper level. The bottom level will be for showroom with parts

The new garage will remain open until 1 a.m. weekdays.

Minister To Speak On Drugs

The menace of drugs for young people will be the topic of a talk at 8 p.m. Monday in Glad Tidings Tabernacle, 842 North Park, by a man who has worked with "the living dead" in New York and Vancouver.
Rev. Richard J. Simmons helped establish a Teen-Challenge Centre in Vancouver earlier this year. In New York he was associated with David Wilkerson, author of The Cross and the Switchblade.
Preceding the public meeting will be a dinner gathering for men only at 6:30 p.m. in the church. Those wishing to attend are asked to call

Keane Quits Cardinals Cold; New York Fires Yogi Berra

Yanks Failed Against Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yogi Berra, the colorful former catcher whom the New York Yankees installed as manager in what was believed a bid for increased fan support, Friday was dismissed in businesslike fashion a day after the team lost the world series in a dramatic seventh game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Berra actually was boosted upstairs as a "special field consultant" to Yankee general manager Ralph Houk, but the change of positions was in no way regarded as a promotion by anyone involved.

FAVORED TWO

The names of Johnny Keane, who resigned his position as field manager of the St. Louis Cardinals Friday, and Alvin Dark, fired from a similar position with San Francisco Giants recently, immediately cropped up as possible successors when Houk said those two plus one or two others were under consideration.

Thus Berra, one of the great players in Yankee history, was removed from the managerial post with the same suddenness and surprise that marked his signing last year after Houk left the job open by assuming the role of general manager—also after a Yankee series defeat to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

BOX OFFICE

Since Houk won two world championships and three pennants in his three years at the Yankee helm, the general opinion which greeted Berra's new assignment last year was that one reason for the likeable Yogi's appointment was to tone down and "humanize" the austere Yankee image, and give the team a boost in box appeal in their unofficial battle with the Mets for New York fan support. However, the Mets proceeded to outdraw the Yankees by a wide margin despite a tight American league pennant race which went down to the next to last day of the season before the Yankees clinched their fifth straight flag.

BEFORE SERIES

Houk emphasized the decision to remove Berra from the dugout was made before the world series by Houk and club president Dan Topping, but the final word was not given to Yogi until Friday morning.

Berra, reached at a Hawthorn, N.J., golf course, didn't appear to be overly disappointed. "I don't mind," he said. "At least I'll be spending the year at home. Where else can I get a job like this?" Yogi lives in Montclair, N.J.

Berra was given a two-year contract in the new post, created exclusively for him. Houk said that the job was created because "we didn't want to lose Yogi," and that Berra "seemed very satisfied with the verdict and with the future opportunities offered him."

Berra, who played in 2,116 games for the Yankees over a 17-year period—more than any other Yankee except Lou Gehrig—and who set a hatful of records both in world series and regular season play, will work directly under Houk.

Berra's new job is expected to include scouting of other major league teams as well as many details which Houk has not worked out as yet.

In his lengthy and starry career with the Yankees, Berra hit 358 home runs, including a record 313 as a catcher, played in 75 world series games and collected 71 hits—both records.

Yogi: 'I don't mind'

Jerome Runs 4th In 200-Metre Race

From CP Reports

TOKYO—Henry Carr of Detroit came close to a world record in winning the 200-metre dash at the Olympic Games today and left Canada's ace sprinter Harry Jerome was left in the dust among a pack of standouts.

Jerome, who won a third-place bronze medal Thursday in the 100-metre dash, was fourth to the long-striding American, who broke the tape in 20.3 seconds. It was just one-tenth of a second off a world record but was an Olympic record nevertheless.

Teammate Paul Drayton of Cleveland was second to Carr and Edwin Roberts of Trinidad was third. Drayton's time was 20.5, Roberts' 20.6 and Jerome 20.7.

As they came off the curve into the straightaway, Drayton was in the lead with almost a metre's margin but Carr caught him and they ran together for about 10 metres with 40 to go. Then Carr's long strides carried him slowly but steadily into a winning margin of about two feet.

Jerome won his semi-final heat to reach the final.

BROTHERS WINS

Another Canadian track star, Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., won his 400-metre semi-final heat to reach Sunday's final. He brought silver-medal glory to the Canadian team Friday by running second to New Zealand's great Peter Snell in the 800-metre run.

Two muscle men from the U.S., Harold Connolly and Dallas Long, led the qualifiers for the hammer throw and shot put respectively.

Connolly broke the Olympic record with his first throw of 221 feet 1 1/2 inches. Vasily Rudenkov of Russia, the 1960 champion, set the previous mark of 220 feet 1 1/2 inches.

RECORD SHORT-LIVED

Connolly's record lasted only until Gyula Zalotzky of Hungary stepped into the throwing circle. The Hungarian tossed the hammer 223 feet 7/8 of an inch.

There were no Canadians in either the hammer throw or the shot put.

Canada's hopes remained alive in another track event, the 1,500 metres, when Ergas Lepa of Toronto grabbed the fourth and last qualifying spot in his preliminary heat to advance into the next round. Lepa was timed in 3:46.4 in a heat won by Witold Baron of Poland in 3:45.3.

The decision, which ended weeks of speculation about the future of the team, represented a victory for Tribe officials who apparently talked the city into offering a new lease that could be terminated after the 1965 season.

Cleveland won its battle to keep the team although Seattle, Oakland and Dallas had made enticing offers.

Tribe Stays Put

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians board of directors voted unanimously Friday to keep the team here at least through the 1965 season.

The decision was announced by Gabe Paul, president-treasurer and general manager. He and board chairman William R. Daley issued a joint statement saying, "From the very beginning, it has been our earnest desire to stay in Cleveland."

The decision, which ended weeks of speculation about the future of the team, represented a victory for Tribe officials who apparently talked the city into offering a new lease that could be terminated after the 1965 season.

Gibson's Bowladrome Sold

Sale of Gibson's Bowladrome to W. T. "Bill" Smith of Vancouver and his two sons, Ted and Bob, was announced yesterday by the former owner, John Achtem.

It ends one lengthy association with bowling and continues another. Smith, a former manager of Chapman's

Bowling Alley in Vancouver, helped found and is a past-president of the Vancouver Fivepin Association. He is also a former secretary of the B.C. Bowling Proprietors Association and currently one of the directors.

He and Bob took over operation yesterday. Ted remaining in Vancouver at his job as a silent partner. Smith announced that no staff changes are anticipated.

Achtem, who at one time owned Chapman's and Seymour Lanes in Vancouver and the Lethbridge Bowladrome simultaneously, purchased Gibson's Bowladrome in 1950 and doubled its size to 40 lanes in 1953.

St. Louis Shocked

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Johnny Keane, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals from 11 games behind to a National League pennant and then to a world championship, Friday rejected a contract renewal from team president August A. Busch Jr. and headed home to Houston with nothing but hopes he could hook on with another club.

Keane called the firing of Yogi Berra by the New York Yankees a "strange twist but I don't know if it makes any difference to me."

ANOTHER OPENING

"I'm going home and I have heard nothing from the Yankees. It does mean there's another opening though," Keane mused.

Keane was reported to have lost his job when the Cardinals founded in fourth place late in August but Busch decided to offer the job to his manager shortly before the pennant was clinched.

MADE UP MIND

At the same time, Keane said he wanted to wait until after the season but he revealed Friday he had already made up his mind to quit.

Keane, a 35-year-old player of the Cardinals organization, said the report he would be replaced by Leo Durocher "could be a part of the little things" which caused him to quit.

A TIE-IN

The 52-year-old Keane said "there very definitely is a tie-in" between the firing of general manager Bing Devine and his own decision to resign. He declined to blame Branch Rickey for his resignation though Rickey has been reported the prime mover behind the firing of Devine and business manager Art Rountong.

"Rickey was not at the bottom of this," Keane said. "I have a deep respect for him. He is a fine baseball man. His suggestions are good."

THEY SPOKE

"I spoke to Rickey several times and I always came out the better for it," Keane added.

Keane said he was "going home now and hope to make a baseball connection on the field. But, nobody has contacted me."

"I don't think I can do anything about getting a managerial job," Keane said. "I'll have to sit and wait to see if anyone wants me."

(Pittsburgh is ready to make an offer, they said last night.)

NOT TRUE

"Mr. Stengel has signed (with the New York Mets). Maybe in a year or two I think I know where I can get a job," Keane said. "It's not true that I am going with the Mets. That job would be a year from now or more and I want a job now."

Busch said, "Johnny said he thought it was best. I tried to talk him out of it but I couldn't."

The beer baron said he had not considered Durocher as a replacement to Keane though he did not eliminate the former manager and coach.

Here Tonight

Seals Rocked, 7-0

San Francisco's shocked Seals will be the opposition tonight in Memorial Arena when Victoria Maple Leafs go out after their first Western Hockey League points of the season, at 8:30.

Defending playoff champions and a prime favorite for the league championship this season, the Seals were ambushed in Vancouver last night, the Canucks getting their second win, 7-0, before 3,081 fans.

Much the same club as last season, the Seals have in Charlie Burra, Wayne Connolly and Gerry Odrowski three former NHL players and proven WHL talent in the likes of Ray Cyr, Del Topoll, Len Haley, Ed Panagabko and ex-Cougar Al Nicholson.

Topoll, Dallas Smith and George Swarbrick, recruited from the Canadian Olympic team, are newcomers this season. Bob Perreault is back for his second season in goal.

Coach Rudy Pilous has had a "hot" line between here and

Toronto for the past three days but the Maple Leafs will have the same lineup which lost to Seattle Totems in overtime on the Tuesday opener.

Phil Maloney, who has knee troubles which were supposed to limit him to power-play action, led the Canucks last night with the first "hat-trick" of the season, and only one of his goals came while the Seals were short-handed.

Canucks opened fast, getting goals in the sixth and seventh minutes of play, then adding three more in the last half of the period for a 5-0 edge after 20 minutes.

Maloney got his power-play goal early in the second period and Buddy Boone scored midway through the period when Seals were again short-handed.

From there it took steady work by the Vancouver defence and some brilliant netminding by Gilles Bolavent to blank the late-to-life visitors.

Big Crowds All That Count

Bud Poile

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The general manager of the San Francisco Seals hockey club has attempted to destroy several myths concerning major league hockey status.

Bud Poile, long regarded as one of the sharpest operators in minor league hockey, told newsmen that attendance, not players, is the sole factor governing major and minor league status. His club played in Vancouver last night and is in Victoria tonight.

Poile, who spent 13 years managing and coaching at Edmonton and San Francisco in the Western Hockey League, said when he moved to the California city he believed it would be admitted to the NHL.

Now he said: "I don't believe the national league is the slightest bit interested in admitting us unless it means vastly increased TV revenue for them."

He made the statement despite expansion noises from the NHL, bosses following the last annual meeting. Stafford Smythe, president of the NHL, Toronto Maple Leafs, has said he considers Vancouver a choice spot for the national league to put another team and offered to build an ice palace if given the land.

Poile agreed Vancouver was a prime spot, but said "Major league status is determined by attendance."

Thus, he said, if Vancouver had a 12,000-plus arena instead of the present 5,000 the Canucks could afford to build a minor league farm system and thus reach major league status without the NHL.

Poile indicated this is the plan in San Francisco where the Seals now own 15 of their 18 players. Poile said they were purchased at a cost of more than $150,000.

The general manager of the last two WHL champions said a team can never reach major league status while dependent on other organizations for players.

Poile said with increased seating it naturally follows that clubs can own players of higher calibre.

This is the case in San Francisco and Los Angeles where teams own their own players and have been able to work out TV deals.

He said the National League, which is limited to the north-east portion of the continent, will never get lucrative TV contracts on the scale of football and baseball until there is an audience across the continent.

Poile denied there is unrest with California fans demanding NHL hockey.

He said people in California consider WHL players among the best because they aren't exposed to the National Hockey League the way Canadians are.

He said bringing the Toronto Maple Leafs to San Francisco for an exhibition game recently could have been an error, but the Seals showed very well before a crowd of more than 7,000 and left the audience satisfied there is little difference between WHL and NHL. The Leafs won 5-3.

Poile said the WHL might never build to the calibre of the NHL, but as long as the league is balanced the fans will be well entertained.

With four of the cities in the league, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles with rinks seating in the 10,000 range or better, teams will continue to buy and develop their own players and thus raise the calibre and attendance of the league to major standards, Poile said.

In Sahara Golf

Sikes Still in Lead

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Dick Sikes, battling desert winds and formidable opposition, scored an even-par 71 Friday, following his sensational 62 in the first round, to hold the lead at the midway point of the $70,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament with a 36-hole score of 133.

Three strokes back were Al Geiberger, with his second straight 68, and Tommy Aaron, who followed his initial 65 with a 71 for 136.

U.S. Masters champion Arnold Palmer, who had trouble with his chipping and putting, came in with a 72 and a tie at 139, while his rival for moneywinning laurels, Jack Nicklaus, posted a 71 for 141.

U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi finished with a 67 for 138.

British Open champion Tony Lema knocked a stroke off par and trailed with 143 going into the third round today.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver added a 70 to his first-round 71 for a 141.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., added a 72 to his earlier 71 for 143. Al Balding of Toronto followed with 147 on 75-72.

George Knudson, also of Toronto, was two strokes back of Balding with 77-72. Al Johnston of Montreal brought up the tail-end of the Canadian performance with a 151 on 76-75.

Still Hoping

Warren Spahn, 43, has turned down three non-playing jobs with Milwaukee Braves, and still hopes to earn starting pitcher's job. He was 6-13 in season just past.

Garden Notes

Lilies On Parade

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In Friday's column I mentioned the revolution that is taking place in the world of lilies today, with newer, healthier and more exciting varieties coming on the market every year.

Many dedicated breeders and hybridizers have had a hand in this important breakthrough, and it is good to know that Canada is well represented in Miss Isabella Preston of Ottawa, Percy Byam of Toronto, Dr. Palmer of the Vineland Experimental Station, Ontario; Dr. Skinner of Dropmore, Manitoba; A. J. Porter of Parkside, Sask.; Percy Wright of Saskatoon and the late Dr. C. F. Patterson of the University of Saskatchewan.

Canadian-bred lilies are regularly winning honors on the show tables of Europe and the U.S.A.

While none of the new lilies can be considered completely immune to virus and fungus infections, they are showing marked resistance to the diseases that plagued so many of the old-time kinds, and all will thrive under ordinary backyard conditions. Some have survived 40-degree below zero winters in Northern Saskatchewan.

One of the toughest of the lot, for my money, is Bright Cloud, which has taken to B.C. conditions like a duck takes to water. Developed by Mr. Carleton Yerex of Oregon, Bright Cloud makes a plant about five feet tall bearing clusters of six-inch blooms, white with yellow hearts, that look like dancing fairy lanterns.

Blooming in early August, it makes secondary buds that come along to prolong the blooming period well into September. Single bulbs sell for around $3 each, but you can usually get a better price if you buy several.

Golden Clarion is another grand lily standing a little more than four feet tall and bearing huge gold and yellow trumpet flowers. Blooming in late July, the bulbs are a real buy at $1 each.

You haven't lived until you have seen the lily Pink Perfection growing in your own garden. This one likes a bit of shade through the hottest part of the afternoon, with cool and moist but well-drained soil, and grows like a weed when these simple needs are met.

The trumpet-shaped blooms, pink to fuchsia in coloring, are produced prolifically—I have counted as many as 15 blooms on a single two-year-old plant grown from a $2.50 bulb.

Nearest thing to an Easter lily among the new hybrids is one called Sentinel, bearing huge, chaste trumpets of enormous size on 2½-foot stems in early July. Sentinel works overtime at producing flowers and it is quite a common thing to find a dozen blooms on a single stem, all exquisitely fragrant. Bulbs run from $1.25 to $2.75 each, depending on size.

Ever grow a green lily? Several years ago we planted three bulbs called Emerald, and I don't think anything has attracted as much attention in our garden.

As cool as the tinkle of ice in a glass, the flowers are a crystal-like emerald green and sweetly fragrant to boot. The plants grow to a little better than three feet and the bulbs sell for $2 each.

These are but a few; I can't begin to list the mouth-watering treasures to be found in a modern lily catalogue. The prices may seem a bit high, but against the first cost, they deliver a lot of mileage, and planted in a site to their taste, each bulb multiplies into a clump of four to eight stems, making an outstanding and permanent showpiece in the garden as well as providing a wealth of fragrant cut flowers for the house.

STAN DELAPLANE Visits New Orleans

Po'boy, Cafe—and Sin

French bread is made four times a day in the French quarter of New Orleans. (And French quarter coffee is made all day long.)

It is lighter bread. Doesn't have the tough crust of the French French bread.

The cap bread loaf looks something like a sitting duck. The sticks are long and thin as a bayonet. Pistolettes are short sticks. The po' boy is like a standard French bread loaf. They make famous New Orleans po'boy sandwich from it.

A cut of po'boy stuffed with ham used to be about five cents. But as you may know, things have changed, colonel. Every day when the fresh bread comes from the ovens, the French quarter people come down off their lacy iron balconies and take it home and have a snack of fresh bread and New Orleans coffee.

You can get them cheaper. During the war, metal was scarce in England and the wartime cafe brutot bowls don't ring. They should ring like a bell when the ladle hits them.

peel half an orange and break the peel in five or six pieces. A stick of cinnamon about four inches long. Five cloves. A demi-tasse cup and a half of brandy. (Or rum if you prefer.) Seven pumps of loaf sugar.

Now you put all this in a shallow bowl and set it afire. (The brandy must be warmed first. Cold brandy doesn't burn.) Burn it two minutes (For showmanship, turn off the lights.)

Now you pour in slowly five demi-tasse cups of coffee. You should get the New Orleans type coffee. You ladle the mixture out immediately and serve it.

If you are really fancy, you do this in a cafe brutot silver service. They run about $50 to $80. Best ones are made in England and sold in New Orleans.

You can get them cheaper. During the war, metal was scarce in England and the wartime cafe brutot bowls don't ring. They should ring like a bell when the ladle hits them.

New Orleans people wouldn't have a non-ringer in the house. No more than they would have a picture of Ben Butler, Yankee General Butler, was the occupation general. He said, some unkind things about southern ladies. And the war between the states is set over. Not in the tea time set.

I have been reading up on New Orleans. Mighty sinful town, they say.

Andy Jackson and the LaFitte boys and their pirates mopped up the British in the War of 1812. The war was over when the battle went on. But nobody knew it. No Huntley-Brinkley in those days.

Later came Pepe Lulla. New Orleans was full of French descendants and Spanish descendants. Pepe Lulla was a Spanish maitre d'armes. What this means is he went around teaching young men of good families how to stick swords in other young men of good families.

This is apt to wear down a lot of good families. Everybody went around sticking swords in each other. I am glad I did not live there for I can scarcely bear to be stuck for typhoid shots. But in those days everybody was touchy about honor.

Sword sticking seemed to help.

Consequently a great many citizens hardly got old enough to join the stag line. And a hostess could never tell who would come to the party until she had read the casualty list.

It seems like a terrible way to live. And as a matter of fact, not many citizens lived through it.

Anyway, Pepe Lulla was one of the greatest swordstickers. And he went around attacking people until he had a whole graveyard full.

Then he retired and became caretaker of the cemetery. A man of free enterprise and forethought. A man who made a job for himself.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Romance Defrosting

LONDON (NANA) — Laurence Harvey is up for grabs. His long romance with widow Joan Cahn is in the defrosting stage... Universal is spending $250,000 to publicize the very naughty, quite sadistic Kitten with a Whip. That innocent-looking Ann-Margret is the kitten.

Carroll Baker is now on the high seas, transforming herself into Jean Harlow on the Queen Mary. She hits London with Joe Levine in time for the opening night of The Carpetbaggers. And Londoners will have a choice. There is practically no relation to the high-necked calico Carroll of Cheyenne Autumn and the undraped female of Joe's burning celluloid.

Kim Novak is now taking guitar lessons between takes in The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders... As far as Mickey Magillav is concerned, the divorce from Jayne Mansfield never happened. He believes their Mexican divorce is illegal and he may pull a Giambe Benedetti on her new marriage with Matt Cimber and declare that mating illegal.

The wedding of Samantha Egger and Tom Stern will be an event of the fall season—on October 24... And Mrs. Tony Curtis' brother Gunther will wed in Paris the Baroness Gerde von Brugger with Tony and Christine all dolled up and present.

Ziva Rodann has taken an apartment in New York and enrolled at the Actor's Studio. The pretty Israeli star was saying at the Albert French bistro that she hopes to land in a Broadway play.

Before coming over here I caught The Subject was Roses in New York. Excellent play and Irene Dalley is a double for her brother. Dan is sitting next to me, stage and screen director Masha Mamoulian and his red-haired Asasia. Like so many of us, Rouben is promoting a new look—Abigail. Rouben revealed that Sam Goldwyn has lost $5,000,000 on his film version of Porgy and Bess. Rouben was supposed to direct the George Gershwin opera—he did the original show on Broadway in 1935, but he and Sam Goldwyn agreed to disagree. Rouben also spent 18 months as the first director of Elizabeth Taylor's Cleopatra. Just think, if he had stayed with it, Elizabeth Taylor would never have met Richard Burton. Stephen Boyd was Mamoulian's choice.

Julie Christie, so good in Billy Liar, followed by Young Cassidy, and now in Darling, has tested for the leading lady role in Dr. Zhivago. Julie has stardom written all over her. Dean Martin, Sammy Davis and, of course, Frank Sinatra will record an anonymous record, billed as The Bumpkins. Anonymous?

Paul Newman has a packet of his own money in The Outrage, thereby violating rule number one for actors—never put money in your own show. But the subject and the acting almost guarantees a profit—for Paul and his director, Marty Ritt.

The Melina Mercouri-Max Schell-Peter Ustinov hit Topkapi has a different title in Paris—What a Lovely Robbery. Not to be confused with Oh What a Lovely War... Too bad the late author Ian Fleming is not around to see the long lines outside the theatre here showing his Goldfinger suspense frolic. It's a smash like all the James Bond movies.

Now that Claudia Cardinale's villa in Rome has caught fire for the fourth time in two months, the police are beginning to suspect that some arsonist up there doesn't like her.

The first Mrs. Peter Sellers, now married to her architect, has opened up a children's boutique near her home in Hampstead. Her model is Miss Sarah Sellers, aged 7.

Just repeating what they said.

We hung up.

The doorman rang. Someone was delivering our daughter home from a birthday party.

"We saw you on television last night," the mother said.

"Were you reading from a teleprompter?"

"Yes."

"That's funny. I didn't know you were."

Our wife came home and asked, "Any reaction on the show?"

"No, not a word," we said.

"Then what are you so nervous about?"

"I'm not nervous."

"You're more nervous now than you were on the show."

"Who said I was nervous on the show?" we demanded.

"Nobody. But I know you well enough to know when you're nervous and when you're not."

We called up our lawyer and asked him if Mexican divorces were still legal.

Every TV Viewer a Critic

WASHINGTON — We've gone into the television business. There is a show called The Entertainers starring Carol Burnett, Bob Newhart and Caterina Valente on Friday nights and every once in a while we come on the show and talk for about three or four minutes about Washington.

We hadn't realized the impact you can have on people by appearing on TV. It's the only entertainment medium where everybody is a critic.

After we did our first show in New York, we returned to Washington. The first person we saw was Vicky, our cook.

"Were you nervous?", she asked.

"No, I wasn't nervous," we said.

"You didn't look nervous," she said.

"That's because I wasn't," we said.

Just then the dry cleaning man arrived.

By ART BUCHWALD

"I saw you on television last night," he said. "You sure looked nervous."

"I was a little nervous," we said.

"You looked more than a little nervous."

We decided not to give him a tip.

As he left one of the neighbors came by. "I saw you on Carol Burnett show last night."

We waited.

"Bob Newhart's very funny," he said.

It looked like it was going to be a rough day.

We went down to the Pharmacy to buy some aspirin. Doc Dalinsky, the druggist, came out from behind his counter.

"My mother said you were very good."

We started to smile.

"But my brother said you were lousy."

"What does your brother know?", we said angrily.

"Don't get sore at me. I didn't see the show. For all I know, you were all right."

A customer came in.

"Didn't I see you on the Caterina Valente show?"

"Yes, you did."

She bought a paper and walked out.

Back home the phone rang. It was our agent calling from New York. "You were great. Absolutely great. Everyone in New York is talking about it. And I think after the first few shows you'll stop being nervous."

"I wasn't nervous," we shouted.

"I didn't say you were nervous. Everybody in New York said you were nervous. I'm

Dies
After Fall

CAMPBELL RIVER—Funeral services for explosives blasting expert Russell Davis, 33, will be held today after an inquest into his death following an accident Thursday on Hardwicke Island, 40 miles northwest of here.

Mr. Davis, whose wife, Lucille, is the only licensed woman explosives blaster in B.C., was watching him clear up after blasting for a logging road when a rockslide hurled him over and over down a 60-foot embankment. He died later in hospital.

Big Exercise in North

Island 'Invasion' Soon

By DON GAIN

Northern Vancouver Island will be invaded the first week of November by members of the three armed forces, including units from Victoria and Comox.

Four Esquimalt-based ocean-escorts will take part in the service military exercise, as well as riflemen from the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Work Point and two H21 Vertol helicopters from 121 Composite Unit at Comox.

WESTERN COMMAND

The exercise will be under the direction of Major-General J. M. Rockingham, general officer commanding Western Army Command.

Assistant exercise directors will be Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, soon to replace Rear-Admiral W. M. Landymore as flag officer, Pacific Coast, and Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer, Pacific Coast.

FOR FIRST TIME

Sailors, soldiers and airmen from three western provinces will combine for the first time in a joint landing operation designed to improve inter-service understanding and prepare them for any role they may be assigned anywhere in the world.

Dense undergrowth equal to jungle conditions, hazardous windfalls, precipitous hills and incessant rain will test the stamina and training of the servicemen.

MANY OBJECTIVES

Exercise objectives will include embarkation drills and routine aboard ship, watermanship and landings from small craft, communications, support by naval gunfire, re-supply, photo and visual reconnaissance, and tactical air support.

Ocean-escorts slated for the operation are HMCS Sussexvale, Antigonish, Stettler and Jonquiere.

Army participation will include

Only One Bid
For School

Construction of the new Saanichton Elementary School has been postponed because only one firm bid on the job, it was learned Friday.

Herb Bate Ltd., a Greater Victoria contracting firm, bid $39,118 to build the two-room school.

But Saanich school board chairman Reginald Sinkinson said the maximum cost allowed for the school was $35,000.

The bid has been referred to the education department for further study and a recommendation. The department handled the architecture for the proposed school.

Mr. Sinkinson said tenders were let about three weeks ago and were advertised in newspapers and trade publications.

Lucid Interpretation

Pianist Makes Debut
Auspicious Occasion

By BERT BINNY

Pianist Dwight Peltzer made an auspicious Victoria debut at Oak Bay Junior High School last night.

Formerly a member of the faculty of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, Mr. Peltzer now occupies a similar position with the new Victoria School of Music and his recital was sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria school.

SUPERB CONTROL

Mr. Peltzer plays with crisp deflection, immense authority and superb control of dynamics. There are notes which whisper and others which ring throughout the auditorium.

But he does more than this: He placed a lucid interpretation on the works he offers.

His performance of Mozart's Sonata in B flat major (K.333) was particularly impressive.

MORE TO SAY

The Mozart sonata has more to say than a Bach Partita and Mr. Peltzer made this overall difference very plain in playing the two in succession.

The pianist also played an Alban Berg sonata and Beethoven's Appassionata Sonata.

Red Chevrons

The 50th anniversary celebration of the Red Chevron Association of Vancouver Island will begin today with registration at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Hall at 1001 Wharf Street.

Shastri Fears
Chinese Bomb

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said Friday China's atom bomb development is "a danger to the maintenance of peace."

Shastri, whose country fought China in a 1962 border dispute and is still edgy, charged the Chinese with trying to build a "mighty war machine."

U.S. Tests Another

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States detonated an underground nuclear test explosion of low yield Friday at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site. A low-yield explosion has a blast force of less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

Russia Says Little

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass took note of China's atom bomb test Friday in a Peking dispatch saying:

"The Hsinhua agency reports: China staged the explosion of an atom bomb in the west of the country at 15 hours Peking time on Oct. 16, 1964."

$2,100,000 Complex

University Approaches Phase Two

By IAN ARROL

University of Victoria's second phase of a $10,000,000 five-year building project was graphically previewed Friday with the release of plans for one of the new buildings—a $2,100,000 social science complex.

"Work will start March, 1965, to be completed for September, 1966," announced university development manager F. A. Fairclough.

"Also to start in March or April will be the education and arts building, a $2,900,000 project."

Mr. Fairclough gave these further construction details for phase two, 1965-1969:

An administration building, $700,000; extension to the science building, $1,000,000; site development, $1,000,000.

DINING FACILITIES

Two more residences for women, four for men and dining facilities for these dormitories also will be built. The cost to the university of these residential buildings and facilities is $1,500,000, but the sum does not include what is expected to be a considerable donation from the federal government.

The location of the social sciences building will be Gordon Head campus, on the west side of Finlayson Road, west of the present Clearview Building classroom block.

The design provides an atmosphere of spaciousness, the whole structure being centred around a courtyard. Entrance may be made from three sides under covered walkways.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT

The complex is made up of four units.

The southeast corner of the quadrangle will house the psychology and history departments; the northwest corner anthropology and sociology.

The department of geography and geology and the department of commerce, economics and political science will be in the northeast unit. The southeast section will be for general purpose classrooms.

The third floor will be the location of the faculty lounge, together with a classroom block.

NOT TO BE PAINTED

The building is not to be painted on the outside. Colored concrete block together with colored stucco panels will provide relief to the plain concrete surfaces.

The prospectus on the new complex uses such terms as "integrally colored concrete block," "dry dash stucco using large colored stone," and "colored exposed aggregate finish" to illustrate how "a textural relief to the surface of the building" will be provided.

The architect for the social sciences complex is John A. Di Castri.

United Appeal Nears $170,000 Mark

Collections for the United Appeal came to $169,991 at 5 p.m. Friday. This sum represents 41.5 per cent of the $410,000 objective.

Friday collections were $11,000, including $117 turned in by Ken Blackwell and Dick Cox on behalf of 400 University of Victoria students who raised the money as the result of a log saw on the beach at Clover Point Sept. 26.

Dangerous Crossing

Parents' Plea For Bus Turned Down

Saanich school board will not provide bus service for children who have to cross the busy Patricia Bay Highway on their way to Royal Oak Elementary School.

The decision came after a special two-hour board meeting Friday night to discuss a petition which asked for bus service until safe crossing measures were provided on the highway.

Parents in the 4200 block Quadra Street and neighboring areas fear their children are in danger crossing the highway on a marked crosswalk near the junction of Quadra.

The petition, signed by 31 parents, was presented to the board by Douglas Kelly, of 4230 Quadra Street, Tuesday night.

Board chairman Reginald Sinkinson said following Friday's meeting that the request for bus service was denied because "it's completely impossible to reroute the buses to handle it."

He said the school district buses operate from 7 to 9:10 a.m. and "there's no possible chance of re-allocating the time in order to provide the service."

Mr. Sinkinson said the board is under no obligation to provide transportation for any students according to the School Act.

CAN'T BE RESPONSIBLE
"We're sympathetic to their problem," he said, "but we can't be responsible for children on their way to school."

The chairman said the board feels the responsibility of crossing the highway safely rests with municipal and highways department officials.

Saanich council is considering the installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of the highway and Royal Oak Avenue on a cost-sharing basis with the highways department.

SIDEWALK NEEDED
But Mr. Kelly, who was "very disappointed" with the board's decision, warned that a signal at Royal Oak "would be useless unless a safe sidewalk is installed from Quadra to Royal Oak."

"It's obviously too dangerous for children or even adults to walk on the side of the highway," he said.

A report on the 2,000-foot sidewalk and the traffic signal itself is expected to come before Saanich council Monday night.

Missile Ship Open Today

Court Told

Chairman Didn't Try To Influence Agent

By IAN STREET

The chief purchasing agent for the B.C. government testified in court here Friday that George E. P. Jones had never tried to influence him or interfere with the proper conduct of government business.

Arthur William Charlton, 3863 Cedar Hill Cross Road, told the court that since his appointment last Oct. 28 he had been responsible for all car purchases by the government. The Crown witness was asked by prosecutor Lloyd J. McKenzie to identify two envelopes containing, in one case, unsuccessful bids by Pacific Chrysler Products in the period April, 1961, to March, 1964, and in the other successful bids by the firm between December, 1963, and April, 1964.

Two Automobiles

Mr. Jones is undergoing preliminary hearing on charges that he received unlawful benefits from George K. Hankinson, as head of Pacific Chrysler Products, in the purchase of two automobiles for his own use.

Defence counsel T. F. O'Grady objected to the introduction of the bid sheets as "entirely irrelevant" to the charges against Mr. Jones.

"The accused is not charged with bribery and he is not charged with using his influence (as chairman of the provincial purchasing commission) on behalf of Pacific Chrysler Products," said Mr. O'Grady.

Mr. McKenzie said the Crown's object was to show only that Mr. Hankinson had dealings with the government.

Mr. Charlton explained the methods by which bids are invited from suppliers for government purchases. He said the invitations to bid are mailed out and when all bids are received the quoted prices are put on a "spread sheet."

The bids are compared, then sent to the government department which requested the purchase, and are returned to the chief purchasing agent who adds his recommendation to those of department officials.

The spread sheets are then passed on to the chairman or another member of the three-man purchasing commission for approval.

"The chairman has the final say," said Mr. McKenzie. "I wouldn't say that it actually is final... but he must see that the transaction is in order," the witness said.

In cross-examination Mr. O'Grady asked the witness to identify the member of the purchasing commission who had initially spread sheets for purchases in which Pacific Chrysler Products was the successful bidder.

The first three sheets on top of the pile, dated March of this year, were initiated by deputy works minister Arnold Webb, a member of the purchasing commission.

The fourth was initiated by a departmental official and bore the rubber stamp of Mr. Jones as chairman of the purchasing commission.

In all cases Mr. Charlton said the recommendation to purchase the cars from Pacific Chrysler was his own.

Queries Role

"Has the chairman, Mr. Jones, in any case during the period in question sought to influence your recommendation or attempted to interfere with the conduct of business by any improper means?" asked Mr. O'Grady.

"No, sir," replied the witness. "Is it correct to say that the chairman's role was essentially that of watchdog?" said Mr. O'Grady. "He simply rubber-stamped your recommendations?"

Mr. Charlton agreed, adding that the chairman was "very well qualified" to demand an explanation if any of the recommendations were not approved.

mentations for purchase were out of order.

Sgt. Ernest A. Bonderud, RCMP, stationed in Victoria with the CIB, testified that on Sept. 9 last he and another officer went to the office of the purchasing commission chairman.

"We advised the accused of the nature of our investigation and told him we had information that (Jones) had obtained two vehicles from Pacific Chrysler and it appeared that as a result... (the firm) had received further business with the purchasing commission," the officer testified.

Produce Files

Sgt. Bonderud said the chairman refused to discuss the alleged purchases but agreed to produce commission files for their study.

The following day, Sept. 10, the two officers returned with Archie Plummer, an inspector for the attorney-general's department, and asked Mr. Jones if he had "a reasonable explanation."

The chairman again refused to discuss the matter, saying that he was awaiting a letter from deputy attorney-general Gilbert Kennedy. Mr. Plummer made the preliminary investigations before RCMP were called in.

Search warrants were issued Sept. 11 to scrutinize Mr. Jones' bank accounts and on Oct. 7 for removal of files from the purchasing commission office. Meanwhile on Oct. 2 a warrant was issued for Mr. Jones' arrest. He was freed on $2,000 bail.

"The allegation you made during your first conversation with Mr. Jones Sept. 9 was one of bribery, in simple terms," said Mr. O'Grady.

"The inference (of bribery) at any rate was a strong one, and I take you were not surprised when Mr. Jones refused to discuss the matter with you?"

"I was not," replied Sgt. Bonderud.

No Withdrawals

A. L. Weslowsky, manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at Superior and Menzies, testified that Mr. Jones accounts there showed no withdrawals of the magnitude of $1,577 on or about Oct. 30 last.

There was also no withdrawal of $1,500 on or about June 30, the manager said. There was a $1,500 withdrawal, however, on Aug. 3.

The defence earlier had filed as evidence a receipt for $1,577 paid on the purchase of a 1963 Dodge sedan last Oct. 30 and a further receipt dated June 30 for $1,500 "replacing" the first.

Hearing Adjourned

The bank manager agreed under cross-examination by Mr. O'Grady, that he had no reason to believe that all Mr. Jones' financial transactions went through the Menzies and Superior bank branch.

The preliminary hearing was adjourned by Magistrate William Ostler until 2:15 p.m. Wednesday when Mr. McKenzie said the crown should be able to complete its case in about an hour.

Varsity Magazine Banned by Stores

The University of Victoria's literary and humor magazine Centurion has been banned in three Victoria drug stores, presumably because of its back cover.

A satire of a comic strip that explains to children how to do simple and harmless experiments shows in the Centurion the mechanics of making what are commonly called "goof tubes" or "joy sticks"—for model plane glue inhalation, according to the magazine's distributor.

Island Ticket Holders

Ten Still in Running For Major Prizes

Seventeen Vancouver Island residents have drawn tickets on today's Irish sweepstakes but apparently only 10 have a chance at the big money, led by first prizes of $150,000.

The final callover of odds announced Friday night for the Cambridge race in Newmarket, England, omitted the names of six horses backed by seven Island ticket holders whose tickets were announced in the past two days.

CONSOLATION PRIZES

Four Victoria area residents will have to be satisfied with consolation prizes of about $1,000 because their horses will not start. They are well-known city businessmen Justin Harbord, 2700

Beach, who was backing The Bos'n; Chan Yat Wing, 3143 Quadra, St. George; Mrs. Ivy McAndrew, 9679 Third in Sidney, Barletta, and two ticket holders identified only by noms-de-plume Shuswap Kid, with ticket VHP 08788, on Candide Picture, and Robbie's Roy, with WSN 48865, on Our Babur.

IN SLOGAN

Mr. Harbord's nom-de-plume was Sideline, a word in the advertising slogan of his insurance business.

Also out of luck were Velma Veresh of Alberni, another backer of St. George, and a Texada Island resident with the nom-de-plume Billarona, whose ticket, WSJ 96837, was drawn on Dixie-land.

STARTERS

Still in the race:

● Mrs. Agnes Brodie, 1883 Lullie, whose horse, Water Skier, is one of many outsiders at odds of 66-1.

● Cimarron, Victoria, ticket VJH 88850 on Parkinson Minor, also 66-1.

● Outside, Victoria, VLB 82523 on River Chatter, 25-1.

● Three Dopes, VJQ 48838 on Owl, 16-1, the best odds of any Is.-and-held horse.

● W. R. Sabiston, Alberni, WTE 86902 on Zaleucus, 33-1.

● Wallis, Alberni, VKK 6802, Zaleucus.

● Jonathan Joan, Duncan, WPM 76708 on Heartburn, 66-1.

● Mrs. R. Baglo, Port Alberni, WSK 81643 on Prince Hansel 66-1.

● Brandy, Port Alberni, VMN 68253 on Boggymann, 25-1.

● T. ex, Courtenay, WTH 79438, Boggymann.

Owl and two other horses are fifth on the odds list. Nobody on the Island is backing 10-1 favorite Hasty Cloud, which came second in 1962 and third last year.

The race will be broadcast at 7 a.m. on CBU and CJVI.

Hearing Adjourned

Car Dealer Faces Reworded Charges

Two reworded charges against former city car dealer George K. Hankinson of "conferring unlawful benefits on a B.C. government official were read in police court Friday.

A few minutes earlier Magistrate Ostler ruled that the prosecution could not insert the words "with respect to those deals" in the original charges against Mr. Hankinson.

FURTHER CHARGES

On a defence motion the magistrate ordered the original charges quashed, but said Prosecutor Lloyd G. McKenzie was "at liberty to prefer further charges."

Mr. Hankinson stepped down from the dock while the reworded charges were sworn out against him. He did not leave the court.

The charges allege that Mr. Hankinson conferred unlawful benefits on George E. P. Jones while the latter was chairman of the B.C. government purchasing commission by "forgiving" a portion of the price on two cars.

The cars were purchased for Mr. Jones' personal use last Oct. 30 and Feb. 6.

NO OBJECTION

Mr. McKenzie said the Crown had no objection to providing further particulars, requested by the defence, of dealings which Mr. Hankinson is alleged to have had with the government on behalf of his firm Pacific Chrysler Products Ltd.

Magistrate Ostler then adjourned the hearing to Oct. 23 for plea and election of trial. He didn't set bail because there was no warrant for arrest.

The 15th annual Penny Sale, sponsored by the Navy League and Alden Hamber Chapters, will be held in the lobby of the Odeon Theatre on Yates Street from Friday, Oct. 23, to Monday, Nov. 2. Prizes for the whole family will be on display every afternoon and evening during these dates and admission is free. Tickets for the prizes are

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago I did something horrible. I slapped a stranger's child right across the face.

While shopping in the supermarket my four-year-old son, Tom, broke away and began to chase around. I threatened, scolded and even shook him but it did no good. He continued to run the aisles, whooping and hollering.

When my back was turned a youngster sailed into me with a shopping cart. Without looking, I wheeled around and slapped him across the face. To my horror it was not Tom, but another little boy the same size.

The child's mother rushed over and shouted, "Keep your hands off my son or I'll give you what you gave him." I was so ashamed I apologized for five minutes. Today I learned the woman's name. I'm tempted to telephone her and apologize again. My husband says, "Skip it." What do you think?—K.D.S.

Dear K.D.S.: I agree with your husband. May I suggest, however, that you go to the public library and get some books on child-rearing. A slap across the face is no way to deal with an unruly child in a supermarket—or anywhere else. You need help, mother, and I earnestly hope you get it soon.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 36 years old, attractive and have been self-supporting for six years. My problem? I have the world's loudest luck.

At 16 I fell in love with a married man. Nick was twice my age, owned the cafe where I worked and he was good to me. Nick kept promising to work things out with his wife but after four years I decided it would never happen so I quit him.

After Nick I began to see a man who was separated from his wife. We lived together three years before I realized he was using his religion and his children to stall me.

My next sweetheart was a man who told me his wife was in a mental hospital. Every few months he'd say she was coming home "next month" and he'd start divorce proceedings. I learned last week she WORKS at the hospital and is in fine health.

Why am I so unlucky? I want to get married but I don't know what kind of a husband to look for. Can you help me?—WISH-BONE

Dear Bone: Stop looking for husbands and try a single man for a change. Your "luck" might improve.

Dear Ann Landers: I was happy to read your advice to the mother who snoped in her daughter's diary, bureau drawers and pocketbook.

My parents never pry or ask questions, but they know ALL about me because I tell them. Our relationship is based on friendship and respect. I value their opinions and seek their advice. If my folks spied on me and listened in on my telephone conversations I would have cut them OUT instead of IN.

Now that I am 18 I find myself making decisions on the basis of what I feel is right—not what I can get away with. The girl in our crowd who does the most lying and has the kindest morals is the one with the snoopiest mother.

I feel lucky to have been brought up in a home where there is trust, confidence and love.—ROBIN

Dear Robin: Thank you for more evidence that if you give children something lofty to shoot at they'll aim high. I received hundreds of letters from teenagers but yours said it best.

Panelists Contend Raising Family Career in Itself

"Family life takes precedence over re-entering the labor force!"

This was the general consensus, regarding mothers of school-aged children who wished to work outside the home, of the panel following the discussion on "Combining Education and a Family" at the Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association meeting in the Art Gallery.

Miss Winnifred Scott, headmistress of Norfolk House School, was the only panelist who offered any encouragement for these mothers.

Miss Scott said that very often the mother who chooses to resume her career is skilled, well organized and a capable person able to handle both career and family life.

"However, if these trained women return to their careers they are apt to be accused of neglecting their homes," she said.

Miss Scott felt home assistants could be trained to take over the care of the family for mothers who went back to their former careers. She suggested that these assistants be given a special course such as the one laid down for practical nurses. "This would elevate their position in addition to providing skilled help."

She further suggested that the association could initiate such a course as a community project. She felt too much blame for juvenile problems had been put on the working mothers.

Miss Scott pointed out that quite often when a child returns to an empty house the mother is out having fun, playing bridge or attending a club meeting.

There was very little sympathy for working mothers of school-age children from the rest of the panel.

Canon B. Page, of St. Barnabas Church, emphasized the important role of the mother in family life, pointing out that the main responsibility of training the young child rests with her.

"The responsibility of raising her family is first and foremost," he said.

Charge accounts invited

Canon Page minced no words, when he described as "a pretty weak character" mothers who feel the need to round out their life by taking jobs outside the home.

He remarked that too much fuss is made of "so-called" frustrations of mothers.

"Any woman of character is going to find her primary duty in the home and that she can rise above her frustrations."

He went on to explain that the mother can follow her own skills within the circle of her home life and if she wants outside interests there are night schools where she can go to learn new talents.

Canon Page also pointed out that many fathers don't take their family responsibilities seriously enough.

"They are much too ready to push the responsibility on to their wives."

The third member of the panel, Dr. A. Bricknell, scientist, Royal Roads, contended that raising a family is in itself a career and only a woman can fulfill it.

"If a woman finds this career unsatisfactory I submit it's her education or lack of it," he said.

Dr. Bricknell took exception to the present day cult of making a fetish of education.

"We're not interested in what education can do to develop us as individuals, only in what it can get us. It is too often seen as a tool by which we can earn money," he exclaimed.

Another guest panelist, Dr. J. De Lucca, philosopher, University of Victoria, remarked that an educated woman is one who "has a reasoned sense of the values of life."

He emphasized education is a continuing process which does not stop because a woman is confined to the limits of her home.

"Education only ceases when you commit intellectual suicide!"

Dr. De Lucca condemned the idea that a person who has a college degree is an educated person whereas the person who hasn't a degree is not educated.

"There are many graduates who are not educated, and on the other hand I've known many people who received no degrees yet were educated people."

"All education involves moral appreciation," he concluded. Moderator of the panel was

Wedding in Ottawa Of Interest Here

The marriage took place in St. John's Anglican Church, Ottawa, with Dr. Harry Ploughman, RCN, officiating.

Entering the church on her father's arm, the bride was lovely in a full-length gown of ivory peau de soie. Re-embroidered French Alencon lace highlighted the bodice which featured a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. Appliques of the same lace accented the bouffant skirt which swept back to a chapel train. Her veil of illusion tulle misted from a coronet of lace and peau de soie roses. She carried a bouquet of hyacinth bells and yellow roses. Emerald green velvet formed the full-length gowns worn by maid of honor, Miss Lorraine Etienne, Philadelphia, and bridesmaids, Miss Elaine Ambrosini, Boston, and Janet Rayner, Ottawa. They wore sprays of white daisy chrysanthemums in their hair and carried matching bouquets.

Mr. Charles Brower, Torrington, Conn., was best man and ushering guests to their pews were Mr. Stephen Huff, Larchmont, New York, and Dr. Murray Towle, Detroit, Mich.

Vice-Admiral Herbert S. Rayner, RCN, proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed in the Ottawa Country Club.

As her going-away outfit, the bride chose a suit of blue and grey tweed, matching coat and grey accessories. Her corsage was a white gardenia.

The newlyweds are spending their honeymoon motoring to Camp Springs, Maryland, where the groom is stationed with the United States Air Force at the Andrews base.

Sally Timmis Bride Of Kenneth R. MacKay

A wedding of interest took place recently in St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill Crossroad, the principals being Miss Sally Juliet Timmis and Mr. Kenneth Richard MacKay.

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Timmis, 3450 Richmond and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. MacKay, 1975 Foul Bay Road.

Given in marriage by her father, the fair-haired bride was charming in a gown of white brocade she had made herself. Styled on classic princess lines the dress had a hooded train.

was cut, Mr. G. B. Barnett of Vancouver proposed the toast to his niece.

Tip of Gaspe Gathering Spot For Sea Birds

By GERRY McNEIL

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The North Atlantic's sea birds, creaking in the salt wind like rusty shutters, all gather at this storied haven on the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Alfred Hitchcock might easily have used Perce as the location for his thriller, The Birds. Some sort of odd-beaked aerial wonder is always blithely gliding past the tourist here.

The gannets alone outnumber the community's 1,761 inhabitants 10 to 1, and the gannets are far outnumbered by the thieving gulls.

Then there are the puffins, the petrels, the auks, kittiwakes, cormorants and shearwaters, with occasional flights of Canada geese, mallards and ducks for variety.

Birds are continually wheeling about the high bald cape that surrounds the two deep coves here. They clean the beaches, lead the fishermen to the herring and sit atop the snug houses as if they owned them.

Both birds and tourists are attracted by Perce's striking physical attributes.

COVERED WITH EGGS

The birds plaster the windward cliffs of Bonaventure Island, a few miles offshore, with their nests and the tourists pay $3 a boat ride to see this sight. Just a few hundred feet off the cape that divides Perce's two deep coves is Perce Rock, a 388-foot-high, 1,534-foot-long, pierced limestone giant.

Its crumpling crevices and ledges are loaded with eggs, and a bylaw was passed this year to keep ornithologists and gourmets from climbing the rock to get at the nests.

Hubert Boulanger, a lean, pleasant man in his 30s, can't recall a villager ever scaling the rock to the top. The adventures are stopped by memories of tons of it falling suddenly into the sea.

ERODING AWAY

It is eroding at the rate of 300 tons a year and this should give it another 13,000 years as Perce's main attraction.

A well-equipped team from Montreal climbed it in 1963—it looked like a cinch—but the ice-cracked limestone almost made them turn back.

Before the village is the rock, the island and open water and behind it is 1,050-foot Mont Ste. Anne, one of the craggy, red Shickstock Mountains that peter into the sea here.

Game, including bears, is plentiful in the Shickstocks and there is good salmon fishing in rivers throughout the Gaspe. Jacques Cartier anchored off Bonaventure Island in 1534 and there is good salmon fishing in rivers throughout the Gaspe.

Privateers in the 17th century and run-runners in the 20th used Perce, and two English frigates ravaged the community in 1690.

Cod are still caught, and herring and lobster, but the tourist industry is the one on which the village now depends. Despite a short two-month season, the hard-working villagers have managed to make a success of it.

SIXTEEN UNITS

The Boulanger family has 16 motel units, half a dozen cabins and a dining room in the main house, as well as a general store.

Hubert, during the season, is up early to take lobsters from the traps he sets in 70 feet of water a few yards off shore. He cooks them on the beach and his charming sister Marie, 26, serves them at dinner.

Hubert's brother operates the general store, and his parents are always busy about the well-kept property. When he isn't off on a part-time job, Hubert strives to grow a lawn about his neat frame home — work frustrated by the salt wind.

"Once you get it started, it's all right," he says patiently, reflecting the attitude that has built the prosperous community against stiff odds.

EXCELLENT FOOD

High on Mont Ste. Anne, where the Micmac Indians once camped the sun, is Le Gargantua, one of three excellent restaurants that operates during the season.

Pierre Perusse, the owner, is a small, nimble Basque with the capacity for hard work that seems to be a trait here. He, his wife and a chef sometimes serve 200 persons a day.

At Le Gargantua, named after the monster in Rabelais' classic, one follows snails, periwinkles, pate de foie gras, superb salads, transformed vegetables with dishes like roast duckling in orange sauce.

STUDIO THERE

Frederic James, a United States artist, discovered Perce in the 19th century and his weathered studio still stands high on Cape Canon, just before Perce Rock.

In 1955, an art centre revived the colony here and now hundreds of students come each summer to sketch the birds and the rock.

The last great cod wharf slipped into the sea one windy night a few years ago, but tourists have more than made up for the dead fishing industry.

North American Action

Religious Freedom Urged by Bishops

By BERNARD DALY

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Vatican council statements on religious liberty should help ease the fears held by some non-Catholics, says Roman Catholic Archbishop Philip F. Pocock of Toronto.

The archbishop was interviewed between sessions of the council where almost the entire body of North American bishops initiated an appeal for the church to come out in favor of religious freedom for all.

He recalled fears expressed by some in Canada, especially in the United Church, when immigration began to result in rapid increases in the Catholic population.

DOUBTS OF VIEWS

These fears, he said, arose from doubts about what would be the views of Catholics on religious and personal freedom in the event they became a majority.

The question has particular importance in Toronto where the Catholic population increased to 600,000 from 300,000 between 1951 and 1961 and is expected to double again by 1975, Archbishop Pocock said. Metropolitan Toronto's total population now is about 1,600,000.

"This council statement is going to reassure non-Catholics that Catholic population ascendancy is not going to interfere with religious rights."

CURBS ANTI-SEMITISM

Archbishop Pocock spoke also of the council's efforts to reach agreement on a statement on the church's attitude toward Jews.

He said he favors a statement that would declare unequivocally present-day Jews should not be blamed for the crucifixion of Christ, a view shared by many Canadian and American bishops.

Such a statement would have wide-ranging effects on Catholic teaching and preaching.

It would be important in Canada, he said, because there is still a great deal of discrimination against Jews even though many try to deny it.

PASSAGES CITED

Archbishop Pocock has said the New Testament passages in which Christ, St. Stephen and St. Paul use "hard words of accusation and condemnation" against certain Jews of their time cannot be taken as literal descriptions of the whole Jewish race.

"These accusations against the Jews were uttered by men who were themselves Jews. The harsh words were exhortations spoken by prophets in order to convert the people to whom they belonged, whom they loved, and with whom they identified themselves."

Pelagic Wins Boat Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Pelagic Construction and Design Limited of Victoria has been awarded a contract to build two patrol boats for the fisheries department, it has been announced.

Each of the 30-foot vessels will cost about $21,000 fully equipped. They are to be commissioned early next year.

The glass fibre boats will replace a department ship destroyed by fire last year and another that was retired from service.

Night Life

St. John's Swings After Dark

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — This city swings after dark with a quantity and variety of night life surpassing anything in other parts of the Atlantic provinces.

Nightclubs have been part of the scene since before the Second World War but lately have become more exotic.

Combination cocktail lounges and restaurants are blossoming along Water Street, the city's main commercial area and oldest street in North America. Eight have opened in the last four years and more are planned.

Newfoundlanders love to dance, a fact long recognized by the dozen or so nightclubs situated on roads leading out of St. John's tucked away on intimate little highways in the suburbs.

BEER, LIQUOR

With one or two exceptions the clubs provide orchestras most nights, all serve both beer and liquor and about half serve food. Informality used to be common but of late clubs have been suggesting that male patrons wear ties and jackets.

Down town the lounges have changed the night-time face of Water Street which until five years ago was deserted on week nights except for a few beer taverns and second-rate restaurants.

BUSINESS IS GOOD

Although the city's metropolitan population is less than 80,000, all establishments appear to have plenty of customers, including tourists.

In comparison, Halifax, with almost 93,000 people, and Saint John, N.B., with more than 55,000, haven't got nightclubs, although relaxation of liquor laws has allowed lounges to open in Halifax and a couple now permit dancing.

Gerry Stephens, manager of El Tico, newest Water Street lounge, says people here are asking for "more and better services and better entertainment" and he thinks St. John's may soon rival Montreal in night life.

IMPORT STARS

Many establishments import entertainers from the United States and mainland Canada and within two or three years, Mr. Stephens says, "name stars" will probably be appearing here.

The attitude of St. John's residents has changed, Mr. Stephens says, and it now is fairly common to see girls come into lounges without male escorts, something that was unheard of a few years ago.

Some of the girls are out for a good time and are not averse to accepting invitations from strangers, he says, but "mostly the girls we see in here alone at night are so straight-laced they won't even look at a stranger."

11 P.M. CLOSING

The city's night life starts in late afternoon, about the time old established families sit down to the lingering English colonial ritual of afternoon tea. The lounges are clubs have been open since noon, and several couples may drop in before dinner for a drink and perhaps to dance to taped music.

By 9 p.m. everything is in full swing. Bars close at 11 p.m. in most cases although some downtown lounges remain open Saturday nights until 1 a.m. And some managers say the time is probably not far off when they will be allowed to serve liquor on Sundays.

Courtroom Parade

He Gets 30 Days For $5 Theft

A Victoria youth, unemployed since he left Oakalla 18 months ago, was sent back Friday to serve a 30-day term for shoplifting.

The term was imposed in city magistrate's court on James K. McNeil, 20, of 931 Shelbourne.

T. Eaton Co. store detective Henry Carruthers testified he watched McNeil place a $5 glass-cutter in his jacket and leave the store. The youth was stopped at the store's ground floor exit.

McNeil told the magistrate he didn't know why he stole the glass-cutter.

Sentences were suspended for six months for two youths charged with car theft.

Placed on probation were Richard Stewart, 17, 478 Grafton, and Robert J. Wilson, 18, of 1240 Bewdley. Stewart had earlier been raised from juvenile court to adult court on the charge.

Police said the youths were showing effects of drinking when arrested for theft of a new car from outside a liquor store.

A provision of suspension of their sentences is that they abstain from alcohol during the next six months.

They also were bound over to peace bonds of $250 each and a $20 fine for being a minor in possession of liquor was imposed against Wilson.

Town Deserted

Ghosts Move In To Val Jalbert

By JO OUELLET

QUEBEC Chronicle-Telegraph

QUEBEC (CP)—Ever been to an honest-to-goodness, spooky ghost town right in the middle of nowhere?

Well, take my trembling word for it, there's one in the Lake St. John area, about 180 miles north of Quebec City and thousands of miles from Disneyland.

It's a shock to come upon a town complete with homes and community facilities, but lacking people. More awesome is to find this rigor mortis in our much-hallowned northern boom territory.

It seems that back at the beginning of the century, farmers of neighboring regions one day began eyeing the beautiful Outaouais Falls.

MILL BUILT

They put up their savings to build a mill beside the falls in the hope of prospering through the fashionable produce of the day—wood pulp for the paper industry.

The management built row upon row of fine sturdy houses for their workers, a grand hotel for their guests, a town hall, general store and church, a school for their offspring and a cemetery for their dead.

They ran a track from the main railway line to their mill to get produce off to market.

GOOD LIFE

There were several years of working, growing and good living in Val Jalbert, as the town was called, but it wasn't meant to last.

Foreign interests with export contracts in their pocket opened bigger mills in neighboring towns and with greater knowledge and better connections, pushed the hopeful settlers to the edge of bankruptcy.

In 1957, after a few staggering efforts to survive, the town folded. As the turbines gurgled to a halt, families packed and left. But it took two more desperate years before the last home was boarded up and the ghosts moved in.

NATURAL COME-ON

These were the facts as we learned them after stumbling into this unexpected adventure. With no commercial hoopla, tourist guides or billboards, it was a natural come-on for our imagination.

When we arrived, it was dusk and not another living thing was in sight. But the children delightedly roamed the streets as if expecting old Hoss or Paladin to start performing.

I couldn't help but speculate

Store Donates Lamps For Bastion Square

PENNY SALE

Four of the Edwardian era gas lamps which will be used to help illuminate Bastion Square when it is completed have been donated to the city by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.

The lamps and standards were acquired by the company from Walsall, near Birmingham, England, the same place where city lighting experts hope to get the 24 or more which will be used in Bastion Square and at other suitable locations in the city.

A company spokesman warned that while the outlay for the lamps is not large, freight charges from England to Victoria are something to be reckoned with.

Hotelmen Form One Body

The B.C. Hotels Association and the Hotel Operators and Innkeepers Society of B.C. have amalgamated under the new name of B.C. Hotels Association.

The new group will serve the hotel industry more effectively, according to Nick Renard, a Victoria director of the HOAIBSC.

A new board of directors will meet in Vancouver Nov. 5 to make plans for the year.

"This will include full co-operation with the various tourist bureaus for development of tourist and convention business in B.C.," a spokesman said.

Forgery Operation Broken, Say Police

TORONTO (CP) — Detectives of suburban Etobicoke say they have broken a Canada-wide cheque forging operation with the arrest Thursday of one man.

They said the operation had been conducted so smoothly and efficiently in Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta and Quebec it might have continued indefinitely but for the vigilance of a bank employee.

Wilbert Joseph Mount, 58, of Toronto was arrested and charged on 23 counts of forgery and uttering after a teller at a suburban branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce became suspicious when a man tried to cash a cheque, and called police.

Police said they seized equipment used to make rubber stamps in the name of fictitious out-of-province companies. They said at least 100 cheques for amounts from $100 to $150 were cashed in Ontario this year.

British Developer Makes Bid To Save Cornwallis Project

HALIFAX (UPI) — British developer Derrick Osborn met with legal advisers Friday in bid to salvage the $35,000,000 Cornwallis Centre redevelopment project that fell through Thursday night.

Osborn, managing director of Provinces and Central Properties Ltd., said Friday, only hours after the agreement he negotiated with the city officially expired, "as far as I am concerned Cornwallis Centre is not dead."

Mayor Charles Vaughan would not comment on Osborn's statement, saying the city was awaiting clarification of its legal position. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the city's partner in the joint agreement, were working out the legal situation as well.

The joint agreement expired automatically Thursday night when P&CP failed to produce evidence it had completed design and financial arrangements for the downtown project's first phase.

DRAMATIC BID
Osborn flew into the city a few hours before the deadline and went before city council in a dramatic bid to win confidence in the project which would place a massive commercial and residential complex on 19 acres of old Halifax on the slopes of Citadel Hill.

Osborn told council he had secured a letter from the Montreal Trust Company which, he said, recommended to the Metropolitan Life Company in New York that the project was worthy of financial support.

The New York firm required the recommendation before it would complete mortgage arrangements for phase one—construction of two towering apartment buildings, Osborn said.

Bonus Called Gimmick

Housing Situation A Mess, Says Tory

OTTAWA (CP)—A Conservative member of Parliament Friday blamed a "fragmentation of authority" for failure to develop an effective public housing policy in Canada.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon)

said in the Commons the divided responsibilities of the federal, provincial and municipal governments produce an "inability to make decisions, overlapping and confusion."

Speaking during debate of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation estimates, passed late in the day, he asked Postmaster-General Nicholson, responsible for CMHC operations, how he plans to "clean up the mess."

ACTION 'TOO LATE'
He said government action over the last 18 months has fallen far short of Liberal campaign promises and recent National Housing Act amendments extending low-rental homes to low-income groups were "not enough and too late."

Removal of the sales tax exemption on building materials and production machinery had "disastrous results" on residential house building, Mr. Nielsen added. He described the $500 bonus for winter-built homes as a "gimmick."

SCANDALOUS CONDITION
Housing on Indian reserves was in "scandalous condition" and represented a national disgrace. Many Indians in the north lived year-round in tents or sod huts. He called on CMHC to take steps to finance new Indian housing.

The minister said that starts on new housing units for the first nine months of this year were up 10.2 per cent.

He defended the $500 winter-built bonus and said it was likely the year would end with the country notching up its second highest total in history for housing starts.

Why is Gold Keg Beer a different colour?

It has to be.
We brew Gold Keg for its flavour. To get that flavour takes a special malt, and a unique strain of hops. These special ingredients make Gold Keg a stronger deeper amber than other beers.

It's another one of the differences that sets Gold Keg Beer apart.

Try a Gold Keg soon...the different beer you can't be indifferent to.

CARACAS, Venezuela — Sixteen suspected members of the Communist underground have been arrested in connection with the kidnapping a week ago of U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Smolen.

A police spokesman said Angel Luque, a 35-year-old, Spanish-born society painter, was "the brains of the kidnapping."

Luque and his Yugoslav-born wife Tatiana, who also is under arrest, lived in a penthouse apartment overlooking the homes of Smolen and U.S. Army Col. James K. Charnak, who was kidnapped by the Reds in November.

U.S. Warbler

Blown to Wales

BARDSEY ISLAND, North Wales (UPI) — An American eastern yellow warbler, the first recorded in Europe, was found alive on this tiny island off the North Wales coast recently, an ornithologist said Friday.

"I think the warbler must have been a victim of one of the American hurricanes," said Mrs. Susan Cowdy. "It was probably blown out to sea and landed on a boat crossing the Atlantic."

The warbler resembles a canary and is about five inches long from beak to tail.

Northern Glacier 'Not Reliable'

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government geographers said Friday that mother nature may place difficulties in the way of attempts to develop a deep-sea Canadian waterway through the Alaska Panhandle.

They were commenting on reports that a salt water inlet bisects the Panhandle and extends into Canada.

The reports said that the Grand Pacific and Melbern Glaciers are retreating in Tarr Inlet, 1,000 miles north of Vancouver.

But a federal department of mines and technical surveys official said:

"The history of fluctuations in the position of Grand Pacific Glacier terminus does not guarantee any stability."

"Any construction near the glacier or in its potential path would always be exposed to the danger of a sudden advance."

Priests Will Face People During Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican announced Friday that further changes in Roman Catholic worship—including provisions to bring priest and people face to face at mass—will go into effect next March 7.

A papal-approved instruction distributed at the Vatican ecumenical council outlined liturgical changes affecting more than 500,000 Roman Catholics.

The changes becoming effective the first Sunday of Lent, include requirements:

—that henceforth altars placed in newly-built churches face the people so that they can follow the services better.

—that the priest face the people when reading the Epistle and Gospel, now read with the priest facing the altar and with his back to the congregation.

—that the last Gospel and prayers after mass be eliminated so that the service ends with the post-communion blessing.

—that some of the prayers said silently now by the people during mass be said aloud or sung.

—that national episcopal conferences decide the text of prayers said by the congregation at mass.

The worship changes were ordered by the council in its liturgy constitution promulgated last December.

The high-pressure oxygen tank to have been used is located at the naval diving establishment at Colwood.

Doctors in Vancouver are believed to be trying other methods to control the gangrene.

Sex Offence

I Need Help - Ellis

A man who admitted sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old girl pleaded for a jail term with psychiatric help Friday and got it.

Donald Edward Daniel Ellis, 36, of Ontario, was sentenced in County Court to two years less one day at Oakalla.

Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake acceded to Ellis' request for quick sentencing after hearing the circumstances of the charge. Ellis pleaded guilty.

NUISANCE TO SOCIETY

The judge said Ellis, an East Sooke resident briefly before the Sept. 19 incident that led to the charge, was more of a "nuisance to society than a menace."

"I can go on perhaps for six months and then suddenly I go haywire," Ellis told the court.

He had earlier pleaded guilty and elected trial by judge without a jury. Unrepresented by counsel, Ellis, who sometimes called himself Dan Cooney, sat quietly during statements on his behalf by Crown counsel E. G. McMin.

TREATMENT FACILITIES

Ellis originally had been charged with rape by Sooke RCMP but preliminary evidence failed to show he had used force on the girl. He was committed for trial on the lesser charge.

The judge told Ellis he thought facilities were suitable for his treatment at Oakalla and sentenced him accordingly.

Maximum penalty for the offence is five years in prison. Two years less a day is the minimum sentence.

Ellis disappeared into thick brush in Sooke shortly after the incident and was arrested after a week-long hunt during which RCMP Cpl. W. L. Dempsey sealed off the Sooke Peninsula. Ellis was captured after being lured aboard a passing tugboat.

Fatal Crash

Lesser Charge Likely

A criminal negligence charge laid against a Vancouver horse trainer after a fatal Patricia Bay Highway crash Sept. 24 is expected to be reduced to dangerous driving.

Sanwich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy told the Colonist he will make an application to Magistrate William Ostler Monday when Barry MacGillivray, 22, appears in court.

The accident killed 44-year-old Gordon James Worrall, of 2120 James White Boulevard, Sidney, and his grandmother, Mrs. Frances E. Daniel, 1317 Pandora. Seriously injured was the child's mother, Mrs. Frances Worrall.

Police said MacGillivray was the driver and only occupant of the second car in the head-on collision.

North Slated To Become New Arabia

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Resources and Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Friday the north has shown manifestations of tremendous wealth.

"There is oil there and when it is found it is going to be another Arabia," he told a meeting of the Prince George Chamber of Commerce.

He said that the area, with its mineral potential, will be a tremendous asset to Canada — "And I do not think we have even scratched the ground yet."

COMMUNICATIONS

But he said the north needs economic communication, as the prairies did in the early part of the century, to take goods in and out of the area.

He said he did not laugh when Premier Bennett proposed that the province take over the Yukon and part of the Northwest Territories.

Extending the provinces northward had long been considered as one way of developing the area.

But he said that he was aware of the costs involved in developing the north. "And I rather think other people in Canada are not."

Kremlin Takes Gloves Off

Nikita Hare-Brained Schemer, Braggart, Soviet People Told

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, Nikita Khrushchev's former mouthpiece, threw the book at him today.

The organ of the Communist party accused its ousted chief of "hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions, individualistic bragging and phrasemongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

The front-page editorial nowhere mentioned Khrushchev by name but there was no doubt about who was meant. It said the Communist party opposed all these things and demanded "collective leadership"—exactly what Khrushchev insisted upon when he ruled Russia first in partnership with Georgi Malenkov and later with Nikolai Bulganin. Both those men fell victim to Khrushchev's relentless drive for power. The editorial, first expression of party opinion since Khrushchev's downfall, said it was "irreconcilably and consistently opposing and continues to oppose the ideology and practice of the personality cult." This was equivalent to accusing Khrushchev of dictatorship. Informed sources said Friday Khrushchev was ousted for nepotism (giving jobs to relatives) and bad tactics in the bitter dispute with Red China. Pravda, again without mentioning Khrushchev by name, said the Soviet Union could not "tolerate arm chair methods, personal decisions and disregard for the practical experience of the masses."

The reference to the masses was a clear indication that the party's grass-roots soundings showed discontent with such things as the agricultural failures that forced Khrushchev to buy wheat from Canada and the United States.

Lower Austria High on W.A.C.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett received an award from the parliament of Lower Austria during his recent visit there.

A scroll in his office says he has been presented with the "Golden Commander's Cross of Merits for the Province of Lower Austria with star."

Narrow Margin

Wilson Ends Tories' Rule

LONDON (CP)—Harold Wilson, the 48-year-old Yorkshireman with the computer-like brain, became Britain's 44th prime minister Friday after leading his Labor party to a knife-edge election victory.

Power shifted from Conservative to socialist hands after one of the most dramatic general elections that Britain has seen, putting an uneasy finish to 13 years of Tory rule.

Gordon Walker: Foreign Affairs

Callaghan: Defence

The Queen called Wilson, the youngest British premier this century, to Buckingham Palace and asked him to form a government after she accepted the resignation of Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, who was prime minister for one year less a day.

STARTS NEW JOB
The ceremony of "kissing hands" with the Queen completed, Wilson tore into his new job with characteristic energy, preparing for his first television appearance as premier.

Only one remote constituency—Argyll, held by the Conservatives in the last house—remained to be reported following Thursday's general election for the 630-seat house. Labor had 317 seats compared with 303 for the Tories and nine for the Liberals.

ELECTION LIKELY
The outlook was for Labor to have an over-all margin in the next House of Commons of only four seats and some politicians predicted another election in a year or so. Few expected the new government would go a full five-year term without another election.

Wilson quickly began filling places in his cabinet. For the key post of foreign minister, he named Patrick Gordon Walker, a party stalwart who failed to win election to the Commons. Walker, 57, a former history tutor at Oxford, is expected to run again in a bye-election in a safe Labor district from which an obliging incumbent, newly-elected, would be asked to resign.

BROWN APPOINTED
As expected, Wilson named Deputy Party Leader George Brown, 50, once Wilson's rival for power, as first secretary of state and minister for economic affairs. It is the second-ranking cabinet post and he will be acting.

Sir Alec Not Quitting

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home Friday night described as hard-fought but fair the election campaign which deposed him. "I intend to remain the leader of the Conservative party and I intend to lead the opposition," he said firmly. "I'm not afraid of opposition... one must take the rough with the smooth in public life."

After Two Years

Treason Charged In Spiegel Case

KARLSRUHE (Reuters)—The West German federal prosecutor has charged the publisher of the weekly news magazine Der Spiegel, Rudolf Augstein, deputy editor-in-chief Conrad Ahlers and an army officer with treason. It was announced here Friday.

MAJOR CRISIS
The charges come two years after "the Spiegel affair" blew up into a major crisis in former chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet and led to the dismissal of defense minister Franz Josef Strauss.

Security agents swooped on the Hamburg headquarters of Der Spiegel and its bureau in Bonn Oct. 26, 1962—nearly three weeks after the magazine had published a critical article on West Germany's defence preparedness.

The officer charged with Augstein and Ahlers was named as Col. Alfred Martin, of the general staff, who now is under suspension. He is one of two army colonels suspected of having supplied information to the magazine.

INADEQUATE
Der Spiegel had published a cover story of the NATO manoeuvre Fallex 62, saying West Germany was inadequately prepared for defence.

Bus Crews Protest Attacks

LIVERPOOL, England (UPI)—Liverpool bus crews halted services three hours early last night to protest recent night-time assaults against conductors.

The bus drivers and conductors said they will refuse to work after 10 p.m. on weekend nights because several conductors have been beaten up in recent weeks by passengers.

Calls for Abolition Talks

China Blasts Its Way Into Nuclear Club

From Reuters-AP
PEKING (CP) — China blasted its way into the world's nuclear club Friday and immediately called for a summit conference on the abolition of nuclear weapons.

The official announcement was distributed to jubilant Chinese who ran excitedly through the streets of Peking. (See also page 3.)

The announcement eight hours after the blast—which came at 3 p.m. (midnight PDT)—gave no details of the bomb, but pledged China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons against other nations.

FIFTH MEMBER
It called for an all-nation summit conference to discuss "complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

With the blast, China became the fifth member of the nuclear club behind the United States, Russia, Britain and France. Both France and China refused to sign the test-ban treaty in Moscow in August, 1963 which was later approved by some 100 nations.

The announcement of the explosion came within 24 hours of the Moscow announcement of Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's replacement as head of the Soviet Communist party and government.

Observers said Friday's blast was a timely reminder to Khrushchev's successors that China was determined to develop its own strength in all fields.

INCREASING INFLUENCE
They said Chinese leaders also hoped to use the successful explosion to increase their political influence in Asia and Africa.

The government announcement called it a "major achievement" in China's struggle to increase its defence capability and oppose U.S. "imperialist policy of nuclear blackmail and nuclear threats."

It said China had been forced to conduct nuclear tests and develop nuclear weapons.

"U.S. submarines carrying Polaris missiles with nuclear warheads are prowling the Taiwan Straits, the Tientsin Gulf, the Mediterranean, the Pacific, the Indian Ocean and the Atlantic Ocean, threatening everywhere peace-loving countries."

BOMB 'PAPER TIGER'
"The atom bomb is a paper tiger. This famous saying by (Communist) party chairman Mao Tse-tung is known to all. This was our view in the past and is our view at the present."

The statement continued: "In developing nuclear weapons, China's aim is to break the nuclear monopoly of the nuclear powers and to eliminate nuclear weapons."

Did Bomb Open UN Door?

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday the question of Communist China's possible entry into the United Nations cannot long be postponed.

He added in reply to reporters' questions that the detonation of a nuclear device by Red China emphasizes the importance of Chinese participation in disarmament discussions.

Victoria Case

TRAILER YIELDS BODY

A Victoria man reclaiming a missing trailer in Burnaby Friday turned up the body of an unidentified woman.

The discovery was made by Jerry Coad, co-owner of the Talmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas Street. The firm rented the trailer in Saanich last month.

Burnaby detachment of the RCMP located the trailer in Central Park Motel, 3949 Kingsway, and immediately notified the Victoria owners.

PAIR OF FEET
Mr. Coad left Victoria to reclaim the trailer. When he arrived, there were no keys. Checking through the trailer window, he was startled to see what he believed to be a pair of feet.

His partner, Wayne Carter, said that Mr. Coad then went to another window to get a better view.

This time, he could see a woman's body.

CHECKED IN
Police said they were seeking Reginald Carter of Regina in connection with the case.

City police last night confirmed this story. A couple checked into Red's Auto Court, 585 Gorge, on Sept. 15. The proprietor said he saw a man carrying a woman into the suite.

CARRIED OUT
Next day, the man went out and returned with a trailer. He carried the woman out, and the trailer left.

When the proprietor went in to the suite to tidy up, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

A Burnaby motel spokesman told police that two people registered as man and wife, arriving in the trailer Sept. 16. The man paid in advance for several days.

NOT SUSPICIOUS
The proprietor said that he was not suspicious when no one was seen entering or leaving the trailer. People often park trailers and go for boat rides up the coast, he said.

When the trailer continued to sit there—for more than three weeks—the proprietor was concerned and phoned police. RCMP found the trailer belonged to a Saanich company and notified them.

THEFT CHARGE
A warrant earlier had been issued for Howard by Saanich police on a charge of theft of the trailer.

City police are seeking Howard in connection with other charges.

No Quebec Apology to Queen

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The aftermath of Queen Elizabeth's visit here continued to make news Friday on three fronts—from Premier Lesage, from acting attorney-general Claude Wagner and from Ottawa.

First, Lesage said he does not contemplate visiting England when he leaves Tuesday for a three-week holiday in Europe. Thus a suggested apology to the Queen for her cool Quebec City welcome isn't coming.

At the same time Lesage had "no excuses to give to anyone" for the rigid security measures which culminated in violent clashes.

Wagner, meanwhile, postponed a scheduled press conference arising out of the clashes.

And in Ottawa, in an unprecedented move, the Commons approved unanimously a message of "deepest loyalty, affection and respect" for Queen Elizabeth. The members—but one—stood up and sang together, "God Save the Queen."

Creditiste Lucien Plourde, who remained seated, said, "It's a free country and I feel like it." He added he would have stood for "O Canada."

Lesage said he did not think he would be going to England and he would be making one speech, in Athens, when he receives an honorary degree.

Lesage said he had never given orders to anyone about the application of the drastic security measures.

He said, however, that on two occasions when he had to precede the Queen's motorcade by several minutes, he indicated to police where he thought there might be trouble spots along the route.

"It was my duty to do what I did and I have no excuses to give anyone," he said.

Keane Quits Cardinals Cold; New York Fires Yogi Berra

Yanks Failed To Draw Fans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yogi Berra, the colorful former catcher whom the New York Yankees installed as manager in what was believed a bid for increased fan support, Friday was dismissed in businesslike fashion a day after the team lost the world series in a dramatic seventh game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Berra actually was boosted upstairs as a "special field consultant" to Yankee general manager Ralph Houk, but the change of positions was in no way regarded as a promotion by anyone involved.

FAVORED TWO

The names of Johnny Keane, who resigned his position as field manager of the St. Louis Cardinals Friday, and Alvin Dark, fired from a similar position with San Francisco Giants recently, immediately cropped up as possible successors when Houk said those two plus one or two others were under consideration.

Thus Berra, one of the great players in Yankee history, was removed from the managerial post with the same suddenness and surprise that marked his signing last year after Houk left the job open by assuming the role of general manager—also after a Yankee series defeat to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

BOX OFFICE

Since Houk won two world championships and three pennants in his three years at the Yankee helm, the general opinion which greeted Berra's new assignment last year was that one reason for the likeable Yogi's appointment was to tone down and "humanize" the austere Yankee image, and give the team a boost in box appeal in their unofficial battle with the Mets for New York fan support.

However, the Mets proceeded to outdraw the Yankees by a wide margin despite a tight American league pennant race which went down to the next to last day of the season before the Yankees clinched their fifth straight flag.

Berra, reached at a Hawthorth, N.J., golf course, didn't appear to be overly disappointed.

DON'T MIND

"I don't mind," he said. "At least I'll be spending the year at home. Where else can I get a job like this?" Yogi lives in Montclair, N.J.

Berra was given a two-year contract in the new post, created exclusively for him. Houk said that the job was created because "we didn't want to lose Yogi," and that Berra "seemed very satisfied with the verdict and with the future opportunities offered him."

Berra, who played in 2,116 games for the Yankees over a 17-year period—more than any other Yankee except Lou Gehrig—and who set a handful of records both in world series and regular season play, will work directly under Houk.

Berra's new job is expected to include scouting of other major league teams as well as many details which Houk has not worked out as yet.

In his lengthy and starry career with the Yankees, Berra hit 358 home runs, including a record 313 as a catcher, played in 75 world series games and collected 71 hits—both records.

Crothers In Running For Medal in 400

TOKYO (CP)—Trinidad runners won the first two heats today of the Olympic 400 metres. The celebrated Wendell Mot-

Hurry Harry Hurry

By ED HINON

TOKYO (CP)—Sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver and pole vaulter Jerry Moro of Trail, B.C., attempt today to add a couple of more medals to Canada's bag of three—gold, silver and bronze—and make the 1964 Olympics the most successful for their country since the 1936 Berlin Games.

Already Bill Crothers of Toronto and Harry Jerome of Vancouver have equalled the number of medals won by the men's track team in 1936.

Crothers ran the best 800 metres of his track career Friday to win the second-place silver medal in a race against winner Peter Snell of New Zealand, who finished six feet in front of the bespectacled Canadian.

WINS HEATS Jerome, coming off a third-place bronze medal showing in the men's 100-metre dash Thursday, sped confidently through the 200 trials, and in one heat he hit close to his best time this year.

Snell's second straight Olympic 800-metre gold medal left him a hot favorite for the 1,500 metres—the metric mile. He won Friday's race in the Olympic record time of 1:45.1. The race was so fast that all the first four finishers were under the Olympic mark set in the heats. Crothers clocked 1:45.6.

For a moment it looked as if Crothers had blown it. He was last in the early stages when he was bumped and had to change lanes. But he recovered quickly and a final spurt brought him the silver medal.

DOING BETTER

The United States won two gold medals in track and two in swimming and is generally regarded as doing better than expected in collecting medals. The U.S. now has a total of 42 medals—19 gold, 11 silver and 12 bronze. Russia has 27—nine gold, seven silver and 11 bronze.

American Rex Cawley won the men's 400-metre hurdles in 49.6 seconds and a Tennessee girl, Wynnia Tyus, captured the women's 100-metre dash in 11.4 after beating Irene Piotrowski in a heat. The Canadian finished fifth and didn't qualify for the final.

WINS FOURTH Sharpshooter Gil Boa of St. Catharines, Ont., equalled the modern Olympic record in the small-bore prone position rifle shooting with a score of 595, but that was good for only fourth place among the expert field.

ley won in 45.9, edging out Britain's track captain, Robbie Brightwell, and Bernard Kent took the second heat in 46.8.

Among the qualifiers was Canada's Bill Crothers, fresh from his silver—medal finish in the 800 metres Friday. Crothers and Ollan Cassell of the United States were timed in an identical 46.8 to set the pace in their heat, beating the rest of the field by 2-5 of a second.

Two muscle men from the U.S., Harold Connolly and Dallas Long, led the qualifiers for the hammer throw and shot put respectively.

Connolly broke the Olympic record with his first throw of 221 feet 1 1/4 inches. Vasily Rudnev of Russia, the 1960 champion, set the previous mark of 220 feet 1 1/4 inches.

RECORD SHORT-LIVED

Connolly's record lasted only until Gyula Zalotzky of Hungary stepped into the throwing circle. The Hungarian tossed the hammer 223 feet 7/8 of an inch.

There were no Canadians in either the hammer throw or the shot put.

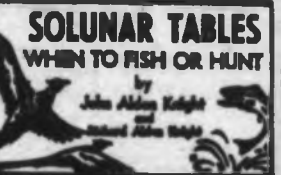

Canada's hopes remained alive in another track event, the 1,500 metres, when Ergas Leps of Toronto grabbed the fourth and last qualifying spot in his preliminary heat to advance into the next round. Leps was timed in 3:46.4 in a heat won by Witold Baron of Poland in 3:45.3.

TAKES FOURTH

Peter Snell of New Zealand, seeking the 1,500-metre crown to go with his gold medal for the 800 metres, also took fourth spot in a heat to stay in the running. Scarcely exerting himself, Snell finished in 3:46.8 and was beaten to the tape by Kipchoge Keino of Kenya, the winner in 3:45.3, Wolf-Dieter Holtz of Germany and Tom O'Hara of the U.S.

Other heat winners were Alan Simpson, Britain's best miler since Roger Bannister, and Michel Bernard of France. Simpson's 3:42.8 was the fastest time in the first round.

European champion Michel Jazy of France, apparently saving himself for the 5,000 metres, withdrew from his heat.

Tribe Stays Put

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians board of directors voted unanimously Friday to keep the team here at least through the 1965 season.

The decision was announced by Gabe Paul, president-treasurer and general manager. He and board chairman William R. Daley issued a joint statement saying, "From the very beginning, it has been our earnest desire to stay in Cleveland."

The decision, which ended weeks of speculation about the future of the team, represented a victory for Tribe officials who apparently talked the city into offering a new lease that could be terminated after the 1965 season.

Cleveland won its battle to keep the team although Seattle, Oakland and Dallas had made enticing offers.

Gibson's Bowladrome Sold

Sale of Gibson's Bowladrome to W. T. "Bill" Smith of Vancouver and his two sons, Ted and Bob, was announced yesterday by the former owner, John Achtem.

It ends one lengthy association with bowling and continues another. Smith, a former manager of Chapman's

Bowling Alley in Vancouver, helped found and is a past president of the Vancouver Pivpin Association. He is also a former secretary of the B.C. Bowling Proprietors Association and currently one of the directors.

He and Bob took over operation yesterday, Ted remaining in Vancouver at his job as a silent partner. Smith announced that staff changes are anticipated.

Achtem, who at one time owned Chapman's and Seymour Lanes in Vancouver and the Lethbridge Bowladrome simultaneously, purchased Gibson's Bowladrome in 1950 and doubled its size to 40 lanes in 1953.

St. Louis Shocked

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Johnny Keane, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals from 11 games behind to a National League pennant and then to a world championship, Friday rejected a contract renewal from team president August A. Busch Jr. and headed home to Houston with nothing but hopes he could on with another club.

Keane called the firing of Yogi Berra by the New York Yankees a "strange twist but I don't know if it makes any difference to me."

ANOTHER OPENING

"I'm going home and I have heard nothing from the Cardinals. It does mean there's another opening though," Keane mused.

Keane was reported to have lost his job when the Cardinals foundered in fourth place late in August but Busch decided to offer the job to his manager shortly before the pennant was clinched.

MADE UP MIND

At the same time, Keane said he wanted to wait until after the season but he revealed Friday he had already made up his mind to quit.

Keane, a 35-year employee of the Cardinals organization, said the report he would be replaced by Leo Durocher "could be a part of the little things" which caused him to quit.

A TIE-IN

The 52-year-old Keane said "there very definitely is a tie-in" between the firing of general manager Bing Devine and his own decision to resign. He declined to blame Branch Rickey for his resignation though Rickey has been reported the prime mover behind the firing of Devine and business manager Art Rountree.

"Rickey was not at the bottom of this," Keane said. "I have a deep respect for him. He is a fine baseball man. His suggestions are good."

THEY SPOKE

"I spoke to Rickey several times and I always came out the better for it," Keane added. "Keane said he was 'going home now and hope to make a baseball connection on the field. But, nobody has contacted me.'"

"I don't think I can do anything about getting a managerial job," Keane said. "I'll have to sit and wait to see if anyone wants me."

NOT TRUE

"Mr. Stengel has signed (with the New York Mets). Maybe in a year or two I think I know where I can get a job," Keane said. "It's not true that I am going with the Mets. That would be a year from now or more and I want a job now."

Busch said, "Johnny said he thought it was best. I tried to talk him out of it but I couldn't."

The beer baron said he had not considered Durocher as a replacement to Keane though he did not eliminate the former manager and coach.

Here Tonight

Seals Rocked, 7-0

San Francisco's shocked Seals will be the opposition tonight in Memorial Arena when Victoria Maple Leafs go out after their first Western Hockey League points of the season, at 8:30.

Defending playoff champions and a prime favorite for the league championship this season, the Seals have in Charles Burns, Wayne Connely and Gerry Odrowozd three former NHL players and proven WHL talent in the likes of Ray Cyr, Del Topoli, Len Haley, Ed Panagabko and ex-Cougar Al Nicholson.

Topoli, Dallas Smith and George Swarbrick, recruited from the Canadian Olympic team, are newcomers this season. Bob Perreault is back for his second season in goal. Coach Rudy Pilous has had a "hot" line between here and

Toronto for the past three days but the Maple Leafs will have the same lineup which lost to Seattle Totems in overtime in the Tuesday opener.

Squadron skipper Inglis and prize-winner Jones

Cheap Fibre Blocks Bring Airman $225

RCAP STATION COMOX — Some small blocks cut from a fibre sheet, valued at only a few cents, have turned out to be worth $225.25 to Cpl. William J. Jones.

Cpl. Jones, 44, a metals technician with 408 Nighthawk Squadron, had the idea of using the fibre "rubbing blocks" to absorb wear occurring in the flap control surfaces of Voodoo jet interceptors.

CAUSING WEAR

The flaps vibrate during ground-running of the engines, causing wear on the main beam of the flap and on the wing trailing-edge.

By transferring the wear to the removable blocks, Cpl. Jones' invention has eliminated costly reworking of the flaps which took nearly 225 man-hours per aircraft every maintenance-cycle.

Each of the eight fibre blocks now being fitted to the Voodoo aircraft lasts approximately three months and can be changed by one man in five minutes.

As a reward for his invention,

Cpl. Jones received a certificate and a cheque for $225.25 from the Public Service Suggestion Award Board. The presentation was made by Wing Cmdr. Grahame Inglis, 408 Squadron skipper.

Cpl. Jones came to Comox from Bagotville, Que., in August, 1963. He joined the RCAF in September of 1963, having served in the RAF from 1957 to 1964 and as a civilian aircraft inspector with the Royal Navy fleet air arm from 1946 to 1953.

A native of Belfast, Cpl. Jones is married to the former Ellen O'Neill of that city. They reside at the Comox married quarters and have two daughters and a son.

In April of 1959, Cpl. Jones was thanked by RCAF leaders for designing a stand and holder for flying-leg sheets which simplified their compilation and handling.

Qualicum Beach

Rink Work Starts

QUALICUM BEACH — Preparations have begun for the addition of a skating and curling rink at the rear of the community hall.

The alterations began with the stripping down of part of the exterior wall at the rear of the building. This part of the existing wall will be used for locker rooms and viewing area.

On the plans are the construction of a new entrance with access to both the present hall and the curling rink.

The foundations for the rink have been completed and gravel for the ice bed is being brought in. Bob Coates, building committee chairman, says work is progressing satisfactorily.

Chamber, Council Goal:

Cleaner Streets in Ladysmith

LAKE COWICHAN — The village council has indicated it will co-operate in an educational campaign for cleaner village streets, Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce president E. T. M. McBride said Friday.

A three-man Chamber delegation recently asked the village council for help in promoting the campaign. Mr. McBride said further meetings will be held to discuss campaign details.

He also announced A. M. Richmond of Vancouver, administrative assistant in B.C. Forest Products' pulp and paper division, will be guest speaker at a Chamber affair in the Riverside Inn at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 27.

Mr. Richmond will talk on his company's proposed gate installation at Cowichan Lake to maintain a high water level during the dry months.

Hayman Leads Ambulance Unit

QUALICUM BEACH — E. G. Hayman has been re-elected to his fifth consecutive one-year term as president of the District 60 Ambulance Society.

Other officers elected at the recent annual meeting were Mrs. Hayman, secretary-treasurer, and directors Victor Canning and Warren Heard of Qualicum Beach, Sam Gough and Anton Kryst of Parksville and R. J. King of Errington. Society members learned 154 calls were answered in the preceding year and 19,000 miles were covered in taking people to hospital.

Mr. Canning, the society manager, said 65 calls came from members, 70 from non-members and 19 from accidents.

Woodwork Expert Required

DUNCAN — A volunteer who knows about woodwork is sought by the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

Association spokesmen said Friday the group needs a volunteer who can spare a few hours each week to assist boys at the Arcadian school with their woodwork. The group also said a collection box will be placed in the school this month to collect used clothing.

Dr. S. E. Jensen, the new psychiatrist for the central Island health unit, will be guest speaker at the next association meeting, in the school at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Militiamen Training

One hundred militia members of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will conduct field training exercises at Albert Head Camp today and Sunday.

Companies engaged in the exercises are Battalion Headquarters and Support of Victoria; Alfa of Duncan, Bravo of Nanaimo, Charlie of Courtenay and Delta of Port Alberni. Up-Island soldiers will be transported home to their bases when drills end at 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Queen Signs Zambia Order

LONDON (AP) — The Queen signed an order-in-council Friday giving effect to the constitution for Northern Rhodesia — the Central African colony which becomes independent Oct. 24 under the name Zambia.

Tell Your Friends Noisy Drivers Told

LADYSMITH — Three men who appeared in magistrate's court Friday on charges of driving cars with inadequate mufflers were told by Magistrate D. K. McAdam to advise their friends similar charges in future may bring heavier fines.

D. R. Gibson of Ladysmith was fined $30 while fines of $22 each were handed to Raymond Rinta of Ladysmith and Gary A. Rolfe of Duncan.

Alvin A. Fred of Port Alberni, who suffered a fractured shoulderblade in a recent accident, was fined a total of $46 after pleading guilty to three charges arising from the crash — careless driving, driving without a licence and driving without insurance.

PORT ALBERNI — Ald. George Cole, elected to city council a year ago when Ald. George Folkard resigned to make an unsuccessful bid for the mayoralty, has announced he will seek reelection in December.

NANAIMO — J. S. Gilbert and Percy Twidale have been elected to join Richard Baugh-Allen as rural representatives for the Wellington school attendance area. Two Areas Facing Historic Votes

Apartment Survey

School Sites Influence Growth Trend

NANAIMO—A Vancouver planning firm hired to study the effects of apartment construction on school enrolment says the Nanaimo district school board is itself creating and influencing growth trends through its policy of school location.

Rawson and Williams Ltd. submitted its report to the board during the past summer and the details were disclosed Friday.

UNEXPECTED STRAIN

The board requested the survey as the sudden appearance of clusters of apartments catering to families with children was putting an unexpected strain on school facilities in certain parts of the district.

Rawson and Williams urged the trustees "to keep tabs on the growth of family apartments" and be advised periodically on the location of apartments for which building permits have been obtained.

IN HARDWOOD AREA

The firm's findings indicate the construction of apartments is having its biggest effect on school enrolment in the Hardwood area.

It estimated that by 1966 more than 125 school age children will be living in apartments completed in that area since this year.

In the report, the firm estimates that "a drastic drop from today's level of apartment construction will occur in the next year or two," and says the recent spate of apartment construction can be regarded as a temporary peak.

MINOR PART

The firm says apartments will contribute only "a minor part of the total school population," and even apartments which cater to families with children do not generate as many school children per unit as the average single family home does.

In a detailed survey of the school child ratio in apartments in the school district, Rawson and Williams found that, in 240 apartment units surveyed, there were 115 children of which 57 were of school age.

GROWTH SINCE 1961

In the 80 units sampled from apartments built up to 1961, there were only 11 children including five school children. In the 160 units sampled from apartments built since 1961, there were 104 children including 52 of school age.

Ten Still Have Chance at Big Money

$150,000 Awaits Winner in Irish Sweep

led by first prizes of $150,000.

The final callover of odds announced Friday night for the Cambridge race in Newmarket, England, omitted the names of six horses backed by seven Island ticket holders whose tickets were announced in the past two days.

CONSOLATION PRIZES

Four Victoria area residents will have to be satisfied with consolation prizes of about $1,000 because their horses will not start.

They are well-known city businessmen Justin Harbord, 2700 Beach, who was backing The Bo'n; Chan Yat Wing, 3143 Quadra, St. George; Mrs. Ivy McAndrew, 9679 Third in Sidney, Barletta, and two ticket holders identified only by noms-de-plume

Shuswap Kid, with ticket VHP 08788, on Candid Picture, and Robbie's Roy, with WSN 48985, on Our Babur.

IN SLOGAN

Mr. Harbord's nom-de-plume was Sideline, a word in the advertising slogan of his insurance business.

Also out of luck were Velma Veresh of Alberni, another backer of St. George, and a Texada Island resident with the nom-de-plume Billarona, whose ticket, WSJ 96837, was drawn on Dibleland.

STARTERS

Still in the race:

● Mrs. Agnes Brodie, 1893 Lullie, whose horse, Water Sider, is one of many outsiders at odds of 66-1.

● Cimarron, Victoria, ticket VJH 88850 on Parkinson Minor, also 66-1.

● Outside, Victoria, VLB 82523 on River Chanter, 25-1.

● Three Dopes, VLQ 48838 on Owl, 16-1, the best odds of any Island-held horse.

● W. R. Sabiston, Alberni, WTE 68902 on Zaleucus, 33-1.

● Wallis, Alberni, VKK 68502, Zaleucus.

● Johananathan Joan, Duncan, WPM 76708 on Heartburn, 66-1.

● Mrs. R. Baglo, Port Alberni, WSK 81443 on Prince Hansel, 66-1.

● Brandy, Port Alberni, VMN 68253 on Bogeysman, 25-1.

● Tex, Courtenay, WTH 79439, Bogeysman.

Owl and two other horses are fifth on the odds list. Nobody on the Island is backing 10-1 favorite Hasty Cloud, which came second in 1962 and third last year.

The race will be broadcast at 7 a.m. on CBU and CJVI.

Wife Shared Career

Blasting Firm Head Killed by Rockslide

CAMPBELL RIVER — Russell Davis, whose wife Lucille shared his career as an explosive blaster, is dead at 38.

He died Thursday in Campbell River Hospital from head injuries suffered earlier in the day in an accident on Hardwicke Island, 40 miles northwest of here, but it was not a blasting accident.

FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today in Campbell River United Church after an inquest at 10:30 a.m. in the RCMP detachment offices.

Mrs. Davis, whose firm is Russ Davis Contracting and Explosives, was hired by Bendickson Logging Co. to blast a new logging road on Hardwicke Island.

ROCKSLIDE STARTED

Reports say he was watching two men on a tractor clean up after blasting the day before. The tractor workers saw a rockslide begin and started to run away.

Mr. Davis saw the men running and followed. But the rockslide caught him and tumbled him over and over down a 60-foot embankment.

PLANNED SURPRISE

His wife, who is the only licensed woman explosives blaster in B.C. and possibly all of Canada, thought he was coming home Friday night but Mr. Davis had told their daughters he would actually be home Thursday and not to tell their mother.

He told Marilyn, 11, and Gwen, 9, he planned to take their mother downtown Thursday evening to buy her a present for her birthday Friday.

FOUR YEARS AGO

The couple began their Quilism Road firm four years ago last March 1.

Mrs. Davis liked the work so well she decided to become a licensed blaster, passing still government exams last June with higher marks than most men usually obtain.

When she wasn't blasting, she looked after the firm's powder magazine, which contained 60,000 pounds of dynamite and much equipment on a 34-acre site.

Mrs. Davis said Friday she doesn't know yet whether she will keep the company going.

"If I can hold it financially, I will," she said.

She disclosed that William Pryde, head of the Canadian Industries Ltd. offices in Vancouver, had phoned over to tell her he was sending a man up from Departure Bay "to run the business for a few days, on them."

Other speakers come from the National Employment Service and the provincial welfare departments.

GOVERNMENT AID

Donations from many sources have financed the work of the centre and this year, for the first time, it has received grants from three levels of government.

Over-organization is a danger, warned Mrs. Sturrock. The main is to provide a meeting place and those who use it can take over responsibility for its operation.

Cowichan Casting Ballots on Schools

Special to the Colonist

Two Vancouver Island areas, one large and the other small, are to make a historic decision today.

This is the day that taxpayers of Alberni and Port Alberni vote on the proposal that the Twin Cities amalgamate Oct. 31, 1967, to become the city of Port Alberni.

It's also the day that the ratepayers of the 1,800-population community of Saltair are expected to decide whether to amalgamate with the municipality of North Cowichan or the village of Ladysmith.

These are not the only votes on the Island today.

Ratepayers in the Cowichan school district will cast ballots on two school development referendum worth a total of $844,653.

In the Alberni Valley, polling stations will be open in both city halls from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and a 60 per cent majority is required for amalgamation to become a fact.

The Saltair decision is expected to come from a meeting of the Saltair Ratepayers' Association at 8 p.m. in Mount Brenton School.

The executive of the association met recently with the councils of North Cowichan, which has a population of 10,000, and Ladysmith, which has 3,800 residents.

The decision will not be final, since an amalgamation plebiscite must still be held in Saltair and the community chosen by the ratepayers tonight.

In the Cowichan school district, polling stations will be open in 13 centres, also from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., and here again a 60 per cent majority is needed for passage.

Voting places will be Cowichan Senior Secondary, Maple Bay, Crofton, Westholme, old Somers, Bonner Junior Secondary, Bench, Cobble Hill, Watson Avenue, Cowichan Station, Glenora, old Koksilah, Sahlam and Shawnigan Lake elementary schools.

Officials in both districts have urged voters to remember they must use a lead pencil while casting their ballots and must not use ballpoint pens. They must use an X rather than the words yes or no.

Stolen Car Leaves Hole in Wall

Museum Given Green Light

CAMPBELL RIVER—Village council has given the green light to the Campbell River Historical Society on its museum project.

In a busy meeting, council this week also:

● Learned a land swap is possible to expand the airport.

● Was told paving projects are possible at the airport.

● Heard good news about work on a district road.

The historical society last month asked council for permission to raise funds for the construction of the museum on village property.

Council, however, was in some doubt as to the legality of the move and checked with the provincial municipal affairs department in Victoria.

The green light came after C. H. Woodward of the department sent council a letter saying there was no legal impediment to the proposal providing the "village has the whole amount on hand before construction is undertaken."

IMMEDIATE START

Curator Ed Meade indicated after council's approval that the project would be launched immediately.

The land was donated originally to the village for a museum and travel bureau but the idea ran into a long series of setbacks.

Elk River Timber Co. has indicated it would be willing to exchange the necessary property for this purpose.

PAVE RUNWAYS

R. C. Hurst, regional superintendent for the federal transport department, advised the village council the department intends to pave runways and parking lot at the airport.

However, he recommended strongly that the village obtain more property as soon as possible as there now is insufficient space to accommodate facilities normally associated with a first-class airport.

Mr. Hurst mentioned hangars, commercial buildings, parking lot and roads.

The right-of-way should be completed in February. Clearing and sub-grading would follow and the $40,000 road should be completed later in 1965.

Friendship Centre Must Realize Indians' Problems

PORT ALBERNI—A woman who set up a Canadian Native Friendship Centre in Edmonton has good advice to offer the local committee pledged to similar work.

Mrs. J. Darryl Sturrock of Edmonton spoke here recently to a committee planning construction of and programs for a native Indian friendship centre.

SET UP CENTRE

She said she gained a good deal of experience when setting up the Edmonton centre in 1960.

Her interest in the project started when she realized two Eskimo girls, billeted at her home, were lonely and confused in the large city.

NO ORGANIZATION

She made inquiries and found there was no organization in Edmonton to help them.

She said the essence of a centre is the awareness of the problems and understanding of the people it is to serve.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

The Edmonton centre provides musical instruments which frequently help to start impromptu parties. In addition there is a complete counselling service and the Eskimos receive directions to help them use the public services available to them.

The natives are also helped to find lodgings and jobs.

Trio Cleared Of Theft At Qualicum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three Vancouver men were acquitted in assize court Friday on a charge of possessing liquor stolen from a Qualicum liquor store last February.

Croft Faircrest was a passenger in a truck police stopped here following the robbery. It contained $4,000 in liquor. William Ellis and Howard Wright were arrested later in a west end apartment.

Two other men were subsequently convicted in the theft. Mr. Justice Collins told the trio after acquitting them that "You have now learned not to keep company with men who have bad records. You have good reason to be grateful to a fair-minded jury."

Kremlin Takes Gloves Off

Nikita Hare-Brained Schemer, Braggart, Soviet People Told

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, Nikita Khrushchev's former mouthpiece, threw the book at him today.

The organ of the Communist party accused its ousted chief of "hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions, individualistic bragging and phrasemongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience."

The front-page editorial nowhere mentioned Khrushchev

by name but there was no doubt about who was meant.

It said the Communist party opposed all these things and demanded "collective leadership" — exactly what Khrushchev insisted upon when he ruled Russia first in partnership with Georgi Malenkov and later with Nikolai Bulganin.

Both those men fell victim to Khrushchev's relentless drive for power.

The editorial, first expression of party opinion since Khrushchev's downfall, said it was "irreconcilably and consistently opposing and continues to oppose the ideology and practice of the personality cult."

This was equivalent to accusing Khrushchev of dictatorship. Informed sources said Friday Khrushchev was ousted for nepotism (giving jobs to relatives)

and bad tactics in the bitter dispute with Red China.

Pravda, again without mentioning Khrushchev by name, said the Soviet Union could not "tolerate arm chair methods, personal decisions and disregard for the practical experience of the masses."

The reference to the masses was a clear indication that the party's grass-roots soundings showed discontent with such things as the agricultural failures that forced Khrushchev to buy wheat from Canada and the United States.

Lower Austria High on W.A.C.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett received an award from the parliament of Lower Austria during his recent visit there.

A scroll in his office says he has been presented with the "Golden Commander's Cross of Merits for the Province of Lower Austria with star."

Narrow Margin

Wilson Ends Tories' Rule

LONDON (CP)—Harold Wilson, the 48-year-old Yorkshireman with the computer-like brain, became Britain's 44th prime minister Friday after leading his Labor party to a knife-edge election victory.

Power shifted from Conservative to socialist hands after one of the most dramatic general election finishes that Britain has seen, putting an uneasy finish to 13 years of Tory rule.

The Queen called Wilson, the youngest British premier this century, to Buckingham Palace and asked him to form a government after she accepted the resignation of Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, who was prime minister for one year less a day.

STARTS NEW JOB
The ceremony of "kissing hands" with the Queen completed, Wilson tore into his new job with characteristic energy, preparing for his first television appearance as premier.

Argyll, held by the Conservatives in the last House — remained to be reported following Thursday's general election for the 630-seat House. Labor had 317 seats compared with 303 for the Tories and nine for the Liberals.

ELECTION LIKELY
The outlook was for Labor to have an overall margin in the next House of Commons of only four seats and some politicians predicted another election in a year or so. Few expected the new government would go a full five-year term without another election.

Wilson quickly began filling places in his cabinet. For the key post of foreign minister, he named Patrick Gordon Walker, a party stalwart who failed to win election to the Commons. Walker, 57, a former history tutor at Oxford, is expected to run again in a byelection in a safe Labor district from which an obliging incumbent, newly-elected, would be asked to resign.

BROWN APPOINTED
As expected, Brown named Deputy Party Leader George Brown, 50, once Wilson's rival for power, as first secretary of state and minister for economic affairs. It is the second-ranking cabinet post and he will be acting.

Sir Alec Not Quitting

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home Friday night described as hard-fought but fair the election campaign which he had lost.

"I intend to remain the leader of the Conservative party and I intend to lead the Opposition," he said firmly.

"I am not afraid of opposition... one must take the rough with the smooth in public life."

After Two Years

Treason Charged In Spiegel Case

KARLSRUHE (Reuters)—The West German federal prosecutor has charged the publisher of the weekly news magazine Der Spiegel, Rudolf Augstein, deputy editor-in-chief Conrad Ahlers, and an army officer with treason, it was announced here Friday.

MAJOR CRISIS

The charges come two years after "the Spiegel affair" blew up into a major crisis in former chancellor Konrad Adenauer's cabinet and led to the dismissal of defense minister Franz Josef Strauss.

Security agents swooped on the Hamburg headquarters of Der Spiegel and its bureau in Bonn Oct. 26, 1962 — nearly three weeks after the magazine had published a critical article on West Germany's defense preparedness.

The officer charged with Augstein and Ahlers was named as Col. Alfred Martin, of the general staff, who now is under suspension. He is one of two army colonels suspected of having supplied information to the magazine.

INADEQUATE

Bus Crews Protest Attacks

The bus drivers and conductors said they will refuse to work after 10 p.m. on weekend nights because several conductors have been beaten up in recent weeks by passengers.

Calls for Abolition Talks

China Blasts Its Way Into Nuclear Club

From Reuters-AP
PEKING (CP) — China blasted its way into the world's nuclear club Friday and immediately called for a summit conference on the abolition of nuclear weapons.

The official announcement was distributed to jubilant Chinese who ran excitedly through the streets of Peking. (See also Page 3, 15.)

The announcement eight hours after the blast — which came at 3 p.m. (midnight EDT) — gave no details of the bomb, but pledged China would never be the first to use nuclear weapons against other nations.

It called for an all-nation summit conference to discuss "complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

FIFTH MEMBER

With the blast, China became the fifth member of the nuclear club behind the United States, Russia, Britain and France. Both France and China refused to sign the test-ban treaty in Moscow in August, 1963 which was later approved by some 100 nations.

The announcement of the explosion came within 24 hours of the Moscow announcement of Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev's replacement as head of the Soviet Communist party and government.

Observers said Friday's blast was a timely reminder to Khrushchev's successors that China was determined to develop its own strength in all fields.

INCREASING INFLUENCE

They said Chinese leaders also hoped to use the successful explosion to increase their political influence in Asia and Africa.

The government announcement called it a "major achievement" in China's struggle to increase its defence capability and oppose U.S. "imperialist policy of nuclear blackmail and nuclear threats."

It said China had been forced to conduct nuclear tests and develop nuclear weapons.

"U.S. submarines carrying Polaris missiles with nuclear warheads are prowling the Taiwan Straits, the Tonkin Gulf, the Mediterranean, the Pacific, the Indian Ocean and the Atlantic Ocean, threatening everywhere peace-loving countries."

BOMB 'PAPER TIGER'

"The atom bomb is a paper tiger. This famous saying by (Communist) party chairman Mao Tse-tung is known to all. This is our view in the past and is our view at the present."

The statement continued: "In developing a nuclear weapon, China's aim is to break the nuclear monopoly of the nuclear powers and to eliminate nuclear weapons."

"The development by China of nuclear weapons is for defence and for protecting the Chinese people from the danger

Did Bomb Open UN Door?

Body In Trailer

REGINA MAN SOUGHT

By BOB PETHICK

A Victoria man reclaiming a missing trailer in Burnaby Friday turned up the body of an unidentified woman.

The discovery was made by Gerry Cook, 40, owner of the Talmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas Street. The firm rented the trailer in Saanich last month.

Burnaby detachment of the RCMP located the trailer in Central Park Motel, 3949 Kingsway, and immediately notified the Victoria owners.

PAIR OF FEET

Mr. Cook left Victoria to reclaim the trailer. When he arrived, there were no keys. Checking through the trailer window, he was startled to see what he believed to be a pair of feet.

His partner, Wayne Carter, said that Mr. Cook then went to another window to get a better view.

This time, he could see a woman's body.

CHECKED IN

Police said they were seeking Regina Howard of the case.

City police last night confirmed this story.

A couple checked into Red's Auto Court, 585 Gorge, on Sept. 14. The proprietor said he saw a man carrying a woman in his arms.

Next day, the man went out and returned with a trailer. He carried the woman out, and the trailer left.

When the proprietor went into the trailer to tidy up, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

A Burnaby motel spokesman told police that two people registered as man and wife, arriving in the trailer Sept. 16. The man paid in advance for several days.

NOT SUSPICIOUS

The proprietor said that he was not suspicious when one was seen entering or leaving the trailer. People often park trailers and go for beer to the coast, he said.

When the trailer continued to sit there for more than three weeks—the proprietor was concerned and phoned police. RCMP found the trailer belonged to a Saanich company and notified them.

THEFT CHARGE

A warrant earlier had been issued for Howard by Saanich police on a charge of theft of the trailer.

City police are seeking Howard in connection with other charges.

No Quebec Apology to Queen

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—The aftermath of Queen Elizabeth's just-completed visit here continued to make news Friday on three fronts—from Premier Lesage, from acting attorney-general Claude Wagner and from Ottawa.

First, Lesage said he does not contemplate visiting England when he leaves Tuesday for a three-week holiday in Europe. Thus a suggested apology to the Queen for her cool Quebec City welcome isn't coming.

At the same time Lesage had "no excuse to give to anyone" for the rigid security measures which culminated in violent clashes.

Wagner, meanwhile, postponed a scheduled press conference arising out of the clashes.

Credité Lucien Plourde, who remained seated, said, "It's a free country and I feel like it." He added he would have stood for "O Canada."

Lesage said he did not think he would be going to England and he would be making one speech, in Athens, when he receives an honorary degree.

Lesage said he had never given orders to anyone about the application of the drastic security measures.

He said, however, that on two occasions when he had to precede the Queen's motorcade by several minutes, he indicated to police where he thought there might be trouble spots along the route.

"It was my duty to do what I did and I have no excuses to give anyone," he said.
